

Cogfa Meeting: April 20th---

Speech not given on April 20, 2012 due to time restraints.

My name is Pat Marke and I work on Daisy Cottage. I have worked at Murray Center for 24 years. I currently work with challenging behaviors every day. I have found through this journey that the public does not realize the type of individuals served at Murray Center. Individuals who can be successfully served in the community are transitioned out. It is disrespectful to individuals and their families to give them half truths and rose colored information. I have personally worked in the transition process and understand the complicated process. It is very time consuming and difficult. We do not place an individual into an empty placement. We work together with a team which includes the guardian/parent, individual, and Murray staff to make this decision. The 15,000 people who are waiting for services are not at the level of those served at Murray Center. I understand the budget concerns but many of the individuals we serve have been denied community placement due to their medical concerns or behavioral issues. It is irritating to be told that we can transition out 275 individuals in a year and a half. As I will describe later it took our Team 11 months to place a community placement back into the community due to mild behaviors. If I am having such a difficult time placing him a few others, where in the world am I going to place those challenging behaviors that destroy property and physically harm others. I have had providers say NO sorry we can't serve them and move on.

I agree the individuals should live in the least restrictive environment that can successfully support them. If a parent/guardian or individual indicates that they prefer to live in the community, the Interdisciplinary Team works together to make that happen. It is a long and complicated process. It is very important to find the community placement that can support the individual's needs, wants, and desires. It is a decision that should not be forced onto the guardian or the individual. It is imperative that entire Team find the best fit for the individual's community placement. It is possible that the individual may suffer with negative long term effects if the placement does not meet their needs. It is important that the individual be in an environment that allows them independence, develop and maintain personal relationships, and offer them safety and security.

Murray Center has many residents with challenging behaviors which make it difficult to find community placement. These individuals may display extreme physical aggression, property destruction, and self injurious behaviors. One individual displays property destruction such as tearing ceiling fans down, breaking out light bulbs, tearing toilets and sinks off the wall, and breaking furniture. He also may display self injurious behaviors such as pulling his nail off the finger, biting himself which causes injury, and head banging. He may display physical aggression by hitting and head butting others. The Team along with the individual and his parents has worked during the last few years on modifying behavior plans, making medication changes, working with numerous specialists, extensive training for him and staff, and utilizing behavioral protective devices. He has made tremendous progress. In 2007, he had 204 restraints and in 2011, he had 6 restraints. He now attends family functions and spent Christmas home with his family. We believe that he may progress to a point where he can successfully be placed in the community. Is that time now? No! We are all worried and scared that a change now could be detrimental to his progress.

During the past year, The Support Service Team (SST) has worked with Murray Center as a mediator for individuals in crisis in the community. SST works with providers throughout the entire state. The staff meets every week to discuss progress and other providers who have a vacancy. The type of home is discussed and the entire team discusses the issue of placement.

Two of the individuals on my caseload were admitted as a 60 day admission due to behavioral issues. Our goal was to work with the SST and the provider on stabilization. The first individual had mild behavioral issues and many personality conflicts with the community placement. His target behaviors were physical aggression, property destruction, threatening/bullying, and inappropriate touch. The community placement kept saying they couldn't take him back because he was stable in the structured environment at Murray Center. After four months, they finally admitted they would not take him back. One statement was that if we have any problems with him we will just call the police. How traumatizing is that for a person? It took 7 more months and reaching out to 13 providers before an appropriate community placement was found. He is still having a few issues in the new home. Murray Center continues to monitor this individual. We also are available to lend assistance in the transition process. Our work with this individual does not end the day he was discharged.

The second individual has targeted behaviors of physical aggression, self injurious, and elopement. The individual was transferred to Murray Center from the Chicago area. They are a provider who takes on some of the most challenging cases. He has been at Murray Center for 8 months. We are in contact with the community placement and SST every week. His progress and week is discussed in detail. His medications have been changed. His behavior has not stabilized yet. He is very impulsive and acts upon those thoughts. His elopements cause a great concern for Murray Center and the community placement. The home has applied for 2-1 funding and were denied by DHS. The home has re-applied. His personality disorder makes it very difficult to work with him.

Many of the individuals at Murray Center with challenging behaviors will not be successfully placed in a community setting. The staff ratio to individual ratio is not conducive to success. The individuals may have explosive behaviors occasionally which require highly trained staff to handle the situation. Murray Center staff are trained for these particular situations. Many of these individuals may require more than two staff to intervene. It is important to handle the situation correctly so that the individual does not harm himself or others during an incident.

I ask you to consider your feelings and thoughts about the situation if it were your child or grandchild. I do believe that individuals should be living in an environment where they can prosper and expand their independence. Unfortunately, many individuals with challenging behaviors are at Murray Center because it is the least restrictive environment for them to prosper. I have spoken to guardians throughout the years who were turned down for community placement. The “last resort” was a state operated center. It was the right decision for them. They will also be the first guardians up for community placement when their child or ward reaches a point in their life where they can successfully function in the community. Many guardians have agreed to community placement in the past with troubling and horrendous results. They are uncomfortable trying the process again. A lot can be said to a parent or guardian who has a peace of mind and can sleep at night knowing their child is being taken care of when they aren’t there. Do you want to take their peace of mind away? I have heard from people in the community on this journey that we “warehouse individuals.” That concept must be corrected. We have discharged 145 people in the last ten years. Individuals are not admitted to Murray Center and forgotten about. If the individual has progressed to a point where they can successfully function in the “right” community placement, Murray Center has placed them in the community. We will continue to advance in the transition progress despite the ruling. It will not be because we are mandated, but because it is the right thing to do. One last thought is where the individual goes once the community placement does not work out? Murray Center is currently helping with crisis individuals with the Support Service Team in stabilizing the individual so they may return to the community. It is imperative to realize that individuals’ progress is at different rates. Moving individuals who are not ready can be detrimental to their progress and have long-term effects. Are you ready to take on that responsibility? Shouldn’t the parents/guardians make those decisions and not strangers. The big question is if the state doesn’t have vacancies for those 170 individuals at Jacksonville, where are you placing the 274 individuals at Murray Center. We did place one individual into the community today. He was ready and the home agreed they could meet his behavioral needs. Honestly, his behaviors were extremely mild and wouldn’t be on my radar. Where are we going to place those individuals that take up the majority of my day due to their behavioral incidents? I have had many days spent dealing with one individual for hours and hours each day. A community placement does not have the staff or support for this individual. I am worried that the individuals will be victims without a choice or voice in this situation. Please reconsider your decision.

I have noticed that community placements have different standards than state-based facilities. I have even asked questions about this during visits. One individual had 1-1 staff supervision, but the staff was basically present in the house. How could this staff intervene if they aren’t even in the same room? At Murray Center if a person requires 1-1 staff supervision, the staff person must be within arms length unless it is otherwise stated and agreed upon by the Interdisciplinary Team. Our facility is monitored by Public Health and has met federal accreditation standards. I think that states something about the care given.

Thank You.

My name is Joseph Schoppet. I am a CPA and manager at Scheffel & Company, P.C. and the Treasurer of the Village of Bethalto. I am an opponent of the proposed decision to close Murray Center.

Here is a copy of the points and questions I would have gone over in Oral testimony had it not been for time constraints, so I am submitting it as written testimony.

Very Truly Yours,

1. Is this closure about saving money or improving quality of life?
2. As a CPA, where do you see savings and what will you do with the savings?
3. If there is a savings, is this because of the reduced employment? Where will savings be used?
4. But if these people lose their jobs and the savings are used for the care of the residents in other locations, who will be paying for the unemployment of these employees and how does the savings come about?
5. I would like to know what DHS has done in the past five years for residential providers and facilities already in existence in the community. What has DHS done for them? My fear is a good rate might be offered now, but what can they expect to be paid in future years for support of these residents. As an auditor I am familiar with community agencies and we have not seen any type of rate enhancement for the past several years.
6. It is our understanding that Murray Center is the only SODC receiving Medicare/Medicaid federal matching dollars. Has this funding been utilized to enhance services at this center or has it been used in other parts of government and can we expect federal reimbursement to be put back into services for the population leaving Warren G. Murray?
7. What will happen to people who may leave Warren G. Murray and are found to be a danger to themselves or others? What funding and what type of facility will be available for those types of individuals and where would they be located?
8. What is the reason for closing Warren G. Murray versus other facilities that may not be functioning at the same level and current cost to the State.
9. The down-sizing will take approximately two years. Have you factored in the costs of maintaining this facility with fewer residents and operational expenses remaining the same? Is there any financial benefit? What is the future of this property?
10. As a parent, and an accountant, how do you put a dollar sign to the lives of these people?

IARF Statement to the Commission on Government Forecasting and Accountability:
Closure of Murray Developmental Center

The Illinois Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (IARF) represents over 90 community-based providers serving children and adults with intellectual/developmental disabilities, mental illness, and/or substance use dependencies in over 900 locations throughout the state. For over 35 years, IARF has been a leading voice in support of public policy that promotes high quality community-based services in healthy communities throughout Illinois. Approximately 600 licensed and/or certified community-based providers serve and support over 200,000 children and adults in the community system.

Timeline of Closure Announcements - IARF Positions

This written statement follows previous statements filed on 10/25/11 and 02/07/12 in response to two previous facility closure announcements. The timeline of our positions are reflected below:

- 09/08/11 - IARF opposed the Administration's original closure announcements of Jacksonville and Mabley Developmental Centers, and Tinley Park and Singer Mental Health Centers due to inadequate planning and an extremely aggressive closure timeframe.
- 10/25/11 - IARF written statement to COGFA offered a series of policy recommendations, that if embraced, would call for the Association to re-evaluate its position relative to the 09/08/11 SODC and SOMHF closure announcements.
- 01/19/12 - IARF reassessed its position following the revised closure announcements for Jacksonville Developmental Center and Tinley Park Mental Health Center based on our review of the Active Community Care Transition (ACCT) Plan and less aggressive closure timeframes.
- 02/07/12 - IARF written statement to COGFA noted our support for the Administration's closure announcements of Jacksonville Developmental Center and Tinley Park Mental Health Center and the ACCT Plan remained contingent on the commitments of the Administration to ensure:
  - respect for the choice of individuals, family members, and/or guardians on services and supports;
  - transparent communications with stakeholders, which includes incorporating recommendations from stakeholders throughout;
  - careful planning and clarity as to what will be expected of community providers; and
  - adequate investment of state funding and timely payment to service providers.

Support for ACCT Plan and Implementation at Murray Developmental Center

Although Murray Developmental Center was not originally identified for closure by the Administration last fall, the Association believes the ACCT approach to developing person-centered services and supports currently being used for residents at Jacksonville Developmental Center can also successfully be used for individuals residing at Murray - assuming the above listed commitments remain.

We also believe some elements of the ACCT are subject to revision as the state furthers its long-term care rebalancing initiative and works with individuals, parents/guardians, and service providers through the closure of Jacksonville Developmental Center. As such, organizations such as IARF will continue to work through issues we identify with the Administration - such as addressing barriers to building capacity, both in terms of residential and medical/behavioral services and supports.

The Administration has made a commitment to ensure that any individual who chooses, or whose parent/guardian chooses one of the five person-centered planning methods will have all of their services and support needs met in the community. As an organization of community-based providers that have strived to maintain person-centered supports through many years of inadequate state funding and delayed payments, we will ensure the state lives up to the commitment through updates to members of the General Assembly as well as ensuring the Division of Developmental Disabilities' outcome measures are appropriate.

Furthermore, IARF intends to continue working with the Administration and the General Assembly on the issues raised in SB 3404. This legislation aims to ensure the availability of the ACCT model - if it becomes the model to rebalance the system - to all individuals, those currently served in the community and those who will be served in the community in the future, so that Illinois does not intentionally or unintentionally develop a tiered system of community-based services and supports.

I am Michael Spud Egbert, the Executive Director of Opportunities for Access (OFA CIL) a Center for Independent Living, that was established in 1990 as a community based, not-for-profit agency promoting the empowerment of persons with disabilities. Our service area consist of the following thirteen rural Southern Illinois Counties: Clay, Clinton, Edwards, Effingham, Fayette, Hamilton, Jasper, Jefferson, Marion, Wabash, Washington, Wayne and White, which includes the Centralia area. It is our ambition to empower persons with disabilities to increase their opportunities to access all aspects of community life.

Good or bad, change is something that most people resist and fight against.

I truly do understand the economics impact to the region, but this about people with disabilities. This is another sad chapter for people with disabilities. This closure should of happen long before now. Because of a budget crisis, this action is being done, and it seems to all be centered around 'THE JOBS' instead of people with disabilities rights.

The State of Illinois is 51st in the United States in small community options verus institutions. Prior state government and elected officials have failed to address the issue of individualized community based supports and services. The people with disabilities at Murray Development Center and their loved ones had no other choices for true individualized community based supports and services, only institutionalized settings were available for the most part.

The Governor plan is well developed and provides for true Person-Specific Transition Plan Process, which includes individual evaluations and services, which will allow the people with disabilities to live in the community of their choice, close to their loved ones.

In supporting the closure of the Murray Development Center, it will be a net saving for Illinois Taxpayers, while provide people with disabilities true community based supports and services.

Disability advocates across the state, along with the ARC of Illinois Family Transition Project, Family Support Network and locally Opportunities for Access (OFA CIL), will work with the families and will be very involved to make sure the Governor Plan is followed to ensure a safe transition, and that appropriate services and supports are in place as the people with disabilities move to the community of their choice.

On behalf of OFA CIL's Board Members, Staff, Volunteers and consumers with disabilities, thank you for allowing our organization to give this oral/written testimony from an organization which works to remove the architectural, communication and attitudinal barriers people with disabilities face in the community and every day life. If you have any questions or need additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me by e-mail at spud@ofacil.org or by phone at (618)244-9212, ext 116.

Testimony of Mary Rizzolo, Ph.D.
Illinois Commission on Government Forecasting and Accountability
April 17, 2012

Members of the commission, I am pleased to have this opportunity to provide written testimony on services for people with developmental disabilities in Illinois. My name is Mary Rizzolo. I am the Associate Director of the Institute on Disability and Human Development, the University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities for the State of Illinois. For the past fifteen years I have worked on a project called the State of the States in Developmental Disabilities, which is funded by the Federal Department of Health and Human Services.

The study was established by Dr. Braddock in 1982 to investigate the determinants of public spending for developmental disabilities (DD) services in the U.S. The project maintains a 30-year longitudinal record of revenue, spending, and programmatic trends in the 50 states and DC. Analysis of the rich detail of the data base reveals the impact over time of federal and state fiscal policy, and illustrates important service delivery trends in the states in community living, public and private residential institutions, family support, supported employment, supported living, Medicaid Waivers, demographics, and related areas.

The following are some highlights from the 2008 State of the States report (and the 2011 report that is in preparation) and from a report by David Braddock and Richard Hemp comparing services in Illinois to five comparison states in the Midwest.

1- Illinois Over-Relies on Developmental Centers and Private Institutions for 16+ Persons

- Illinois has made some progress in the past few years in downsizing congregate care settings (settings for 16 or more). However, our utilization rate for state-operated institutions in 2008 is still over 60% above the U.S. rate, and three times the rate for the five Midwestern comparison states combined<sup>1</sup>.

2- Illinois Allocates Comparatively Limited Resources for Community Services

- In 2008, Illinois ranked 50th in use of settings for six or fewer. Only 38% of Illinois' DD residential placements were in settings for six persons or less versus 75% in the U.S. and from 63-93% in the comparison Midwestern states. Only Mississippi fared worse on this measure.

<sup>1</sup> Aggregate institutional utilization: Total state institution census for the five comparison states, divided by the total general population of the five states.

- Illinois ICF/DD spending in 2008 was 48% greater than HCBS Waiver spending. This is in dramatic contrast with the U.S. and all five Great Lakes comparison states, in which the large majority of funding is associated with the Waiver. Besides Illinois, only four states -- Arkansas, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, and Texas -- spend more for the ICF/MR program than for the HCBS Waiver.
- Illinois ranked 47th in federal-state Waiver spending per capita. Only Georgia, Texas, Nevada, and Mississippi were below Illinois.

The following are a list of selected recommendations from the fBraddock and Hemp report.

1 - Continue to reduce reliance on the remaining nine state-operated institutional facilities and the large private ICFs/DD. Medicaid ICF/DD resources should be reallocated to the HCBS Waiver.

2- Expand Community Services and Related Supports to Address the State’s Waiting List and Aging Caregivers

- There are currently over 9,000 persons with DD on the Illinois waiting list for residential services (approximately 1,800 of these are designated as “emergency” needs). The need for additional Waiver services will continue to increase rapidly due to growing numbers of aging caregivers in the State.

3- Develop a Plan to Significantly Strengthen Community Services Infrastructure

- A multi-year plan should be developed to increase funding for community-based services and supports. The plan would incrementally increase Illinois spending to match the average state’s expenditure for DD community spending over the next decade.

With your help, we can make Illinois a better place to live for people with disabilities. We don’t have to be 50th!

THE STATEWIDE INDEPENDENT LIVING COUNCIL OF ILLINOIS

Testimony to the Illinois Commission on Government Forecasting and Accountability
April 20, 2012

By: William L. Gorman, Executive Director
Statewide Independent Living Council of Illinois

The closure of a State Operated Developmental Center (SODC) is a highly emotional issue which impacts a large number of interests. We understand and appreciate this fact. We respect the concerns expressed by family members in regard to the potential transition of their loved ones to the community. However, we believe the individuals residing at the Murray Developmental Center can be well served in the community.

Thirteen states have already closed all of their state institutions and 9 additional states have fewer than 150 individuals currently residing in them. Clearly, individuals with significant disabilities can and are being served in the community. The population of individuals in institutions nationwide has gone from 194,650 in 1968 to 33,732 in 2009 and it has continued to drop. Illinois, on the other hand, has 8 SODCs with over 2,000 individuals residing in them. Surely, the argument cannot be made that Illinois has individuals with more significant disabilities than other states. I have personally seen and worked with individuals in Indiana, Colorado and Iowa who are medically fragile, dually diagnosed and who have been labeled as having challenging behaviors-yet they are well served in the community. We are way behind the curve. We must move forward.

Individuals who want to maintain Murray Developmental Center will point to some "failures" in the community. Yes, a few individuals have had to return to SODCs. However, the disproportionate funding of institutional services rather than community services here in Illinois readily explains these "failures". Regardless, the state of Illinois, now as a matter of public policy, is committed to individualized service planning and enhanced funding for community providers to ensure a smooth transition to the community. We can no longer base the continuing existence of SODCs based on economic development concerns or the maintaining of the employment of state workers, as difficult as it may be on a local community.

For these reasons, the Statewide Independent Living Council of Illinois supports the transition of Murray residents to the community with individualized supports and services. Thank you.

TO THE COMMISSION ON GOVERNMENT FORECASTING & ACCOUNTABILITY

I've been trying to figure out exactly what the advantages are for the people who live in Murray Center to live here. It's quite difficult to put into words as there are many.

First of all, there is the quality of the services we provide, which includes medical care, monitoring, and interventions. Basic medical care is available daily with caring physicians who come to the individuals to evaluate their issues in their home environment. This causes less stress and anxiety for the people who are ill or medically compromised. Specialists are conveniently located on the other side of town at St. Mary's Hospital. Mammograms are done at Murray. Labs are collected and drawn on site. On site clinics include Podiatry, Gynecology, Urology, Psychiatry, Orthopedics, Neurology, Ophthalmology, and at times other clinics are scheduled based on need.

While some might believe the people who live at Murray should go to the physician's office in the community to receive these services, my answer is that it's much more economical to do it this way. Each of the people scheduled to be seen at any of the clinics would need to be transported and have staff attend the appointment with them. Our process saves time and money as well as keeping stress and anxiety for the individual at a minimum. It also allows several people who know the individual best to be present to provide information to the physician specialist, which enables the specialist to have a better picture of what's going on and thus provide better care. It's very important to be able to provide this kind of information when the patient seeking care has limited communication skills. The people who know them best must communicate for them, and this arrangement works well.

Sometimes people are admitted to Murray Center because they have demonstrated they need to learn to get along better with others. What better way to learn that than to be around various people. If someone needs to learn to get along with others in order to attend a work/day program, they will not have learning opportunities for those specific kinds of interpersonal skills in a home without roommates and only 1 caregiver to interact with. It's not possible to learn group interaction unless you have a group to interact with. Humans are social beings and social skills are important in society. Opportunities to learn social skills in a group are provided as a naturally occurring process at Murray Center. Privacy is also provided when needed and/or requested, with minimum supervision guidelines established based on need by the ID Team.

We see many, many times when people come to live at Murray, the behaviors they've exhibited prior to their admission are just not as big a problem here. I've often wondered why that is. One thing is the response interruption. Simply changing their environment often causes a change in their response. But I think it's more than that. Maladaptive behaviors occur for many various reasons, and I think at least some behavior is used as a communication tool. I think it's possible that these folks know they are different and they want to "fit in". Society is often cruel. My opinion is that these people with limited cognitive skills still have perceptions and feelings. I think they can tell when they're accepted and when they're not. All humans have insecurities. It's human nature. I think it's safe to assume that everyone wants to "fit in" somewhere. I tend to believe some of the behaviors seen in the community are a manifestation of these people being able to perceive that they aren't the same. They are unable to understand and cope with their own feelings and emotions, which causes frustration and anxiety, and that inevitably leads to behavior problems. These are complicated emotional issues, and I've tried to simplify and put it into words.

Once they come to Murray, they can feel the love and support. They can look around and see that there are other people with similar problems – and they are not alone. And they begin to relax and feel accepted and can then accept themselves as well. We work diligently to help people work through issues and teach them strategies to deal with their feelings. And it's not always a formal program. It's done by the sensitive, caring, innovative staff who work at Murray. And sometimes it's quite beneficial to have additional staff around to rely on. Some behavioral issues will simply wear a person down over a lengthy period of time. At Murray, there is always enough trained staff around that the person who is becoming exhausted with one resident/issue can trade places with another staff. This prevents issues with staff burnout and potential for loss of temper and possibly even helps with abuse prevention. Can community options provide that kind of strategy? I don't think it's usually in their budget. Most certainly, if you have minimal staff, it's not going to be an option. There's no back up plan and no one to call for help when it's needed. The only reason Murray can provide it is because we have a slightly larger group of individuals and staff. To me, that's a benefit.

In conclusion, I am overwhelmingly opposed to the closer of Murray Center. I have worked at Murray almost 22 years and feel this closure will have a detrimental affect on the people who live at 1535 West Mccord St., Centralia, IL 62801. Many of the people who live at Murray will regress, resulting in a loss of skills they have acquired and an increase in self-abusive and aggressive behaviors. I guess it is just hard for me to imagine why anyone would want to see this happen. Please don't close their home..... to some, this is the only home they have ever known.

Kim Donahue

COGFA Hearing, Murray Developmental Center- April 20th, 2012

My name is Troy Cannon. For several years, I was the Investigator for the Illinois Department of Human Services' Inspector General's Office, assigned to the Warren G. Murray Development Center.

An OIG Investigator is responsible for conducting investigations into allegations of abuse and neglect of residents of state-operated facilities and community agencies, among various other allegations against state employees or employees of any community agencies supported by state funds.

My investigative case load at Murray was very light- there just weren't many allegations against staff members here. So, OIG used me to augment investigative staff at Choate Mental Health Center in Anna, Chester Mental Health Center, and at Alton Mental Health Center. I was also assigned a large number of community cases across the southern third of the state. While I maintained my home office at Murray, I was on the road a lot over that 5-year period, conducting investigations in nearly every mental health and developmental facility in the region, whether state-operated or based in the community.

I also had many occasions to attend workshops, conferences, and seminars with fellow investigators from all over the state, and visited the OIG Headquarters at McFarland Mental Health Center in Springfield on many occasions to conduct business.

All this gave me a very objective and comprehensive perspective into the nature of care provided across the spectrum of providers. I can tell you from that experience that the staff members of Murray Center clearly provide a level of care for their residents that is not seen anywhere else in the state of Illinois. In fact, any OIG staffer or executive will tell you without hesitation that Murray Center's complaint or allegation rate is much lower than anywhere else in the state. Furthermore, to my knowledge, Murray is the only state-operated facility that has not had a dedicated, full-time OIG Investigator assigned for considerable periods of time, due to the extremely low complaint rates. I can tell you that these low rates are not attributable to the nature of the residents of Murray Center or for many of them, their inability to communicate effectively; rather, a direct reflection of the excellent care and compassion of the staff of each and every residential cottage here, as well as the administration.

A state-operated facility such as Murray offers a level of care not available, or in many cases, not authorized in community settings. Severely challenged patients often require physical intervention and physical restraint. In these episodes, it is clearly advantageous to have an adequate number of trained and qualified staff to participate in the intervention and application of restraints- something not available in community settings. This presents a level of increased danger of physical harm to the patient and caregiver in community settings, due to the very nature of the situation and unavailability of appropriate staff, equipment, and training required. Furthermore, staff of state-operated facilities such as Murray have several other options at their disposal to intervene and effectively control a patient during a violent episode that are simply not authorized under community settings.

In community settings, law enforcement officers are often summoned to assist in the physical interaction and restraint of patients when needed. This not only subjects the patient to the amplified stress and traumatic experience of being approached and physically restrained by a uniformed police officer, but in many cases, police are not fully trained and aware of the unique needs and emotions involved with a severely developmentally challenged individual. I offer this perspective from 22 years' experience in law enforcement as well.

As a former OIG Investigator, no longer subject to the rules and regulations of state bureaucracy, I can offer you this information with confidence and candor, but I suspect those still in current employment may provide you with a much watered-down version, being subject to the whim of the very office recommending closure of the Warren G. Murray Developmental Center.

In summary, from my perspective, closing Murray Center would be nothing short of a travesty, subjecting these residents to environments much less safe and secure, much less stable, and taking many of them from the only home they've ever known. This alone would be clearly traumatic to them, and counter-therapeutic for most, some even to the point of posing an unnecessary threat to their continued ability to thrive and even survive. In fact, an action by any employee of the department or a community agency which would result in such a negative or traumatic experience such as this would likely result in strong censure and discipline, perhaps even formal criminal charges.

If I, a former OIG Investigator, had a son, daughter, or other family member in such a condition, I would be perfectly comfortable placing them in the care of the staff and administration of Murray Developmental Center. I cannot say the same of any other facility of any kind in the state. To that regard, Murray Center is not a collection of buildings and structures- it is a family of caring, devoted staff members, administrators, and care-givers who provide a level of care that transcends simple physical needs, feeding, grooming, and such. The care these folks provide is emotional, spiritual, warm and friendly. It is love, pure and simple. I've seen it for myself. To even consider taking that away from these individuals not only reflects irresponsible leadership, but is clearly immoral, egregious, and therefore, unacceptable.

Thank you.

Arc Testimony on the Closing of Murray Developmental Center

The Commission on Governmental Forecasting and Accountability

April 20, 2012

The Arc represents infants, children and adults with intellectual and other developmental disabilities.

The Arc and other advocates have been calling for the rebalancing of the disability system for many years. We are committed to working with families at the Murray Developmental Center and other state institutions to ensure a safe and meaningful transition into community living. There is no question that this is an emotional time for families. We want those living in Murray and their families to know that they are not alone. The Arc is committed to being their partner and offering resources to make this transition comfortable and productive. We have helped people with the most severe disabilities successfully transition into a community setting, and they are eager to share their experiences and offer support. Yes, a safe transition for individuals who require 24-hour care has already been done in Illinois, and The Arc and its partners are committed to helping more people with disabilities live life in their communities with independence, equality and opportunity. See the success stories of four individuals who now have the freedom of community living at the end of this testimony on page 4.

The Governor has developed a Rebalancing Initiative bringing in national experts to assist individuals and their guardians to make a safe and secure move to community living. The approach is very different from past state institutional closings because it requires the full participation of the individual and their guardians every step of the way utilizing a person-centered approach. This could well be a national model for institutional closures.

Members of the Commission should vote to support the closing of Murray now that the administration has developed a comprehensive and progressive plan for closing Murray.

The Arc believes it is imperative that state institutions be closed in Illinois. In Illinois, thousands of individuals have successfully transitioned from institutions to community living. We believe that many of the current individuals now living in CILA have successfully transitioned from state institutions and nursing homes. We know how to do this.

Community living offers people with disabilities a safer way of living with quality, independence and equality.

Let's do a review of what state and national experts on intellectual disability systems have to say about Illinois. All of their reports state that Illinois needs to be re-balanced by closing state institutions and supporting community living.

1. A Quest for Equality: Breaking The Barriers For People With Disabilities, A Call for Action For Illinois Leaders, The Chicago Community Trust, 2011.
2. The Blueprint for System Redesign in Illinois, Human Services Research Institute, 2008.
3. State Funding of Community Agencies for Services Provided to Illinois Residents with Mental Illness and/or Developmental Disabilities: Final Report to the Illinois General Assembly, Elizabeth T. Powers, Ph.D., University of Illinois, 2006.
4. Financing Service to Individuals with Developmental Disabilities in the State of Illinois, Robert Gettings, National Association of State Directors of Developmental Disabilities Services, 2003.

There are also two recent Legislative Resolutions calling for re-balancing the Developmental Disability System in Illinois.

1. Senate & House Joint Resolution 15 – 2011
2. House Joint Resolution 28 – 2009

There is also tremendous editorial support for re-balancing the disability system by closing state institutions, including most recently the Chicago Tribune's, Sept 30, 2011 editorial, Moving to Community Care – State-Run Centers for Developmentally Disabled Finally on the Way Out! and the Chicago Tribune again, Jan. 27, 2012 editorial, A Change for Better Treatment: No Reason to Fear Community Care; State Journal Register, Feb 29, 2012, Address JDC Fears, Make Care Transition.

Editorial boards supporting re-balancing:

1. State Journal Register – Feb 27, 2012
2. Chicago Tribune – Jan 27, 2012 (See page 10)
3. Chicago Tribune – Sept 30, 2011
4. Chicago Sun Times – June 15, 2011
5. Chicago Tribune - May 23, 2011
6. State Journal Register – May 22, 2011
7. Pantagraph – May 22, 2011
8. Rockford Register Star – April 27, 2011

There are now 14 states without state institutions including our neighbors (Page 9 for the full list):

1. Minnesota – 2000
2. Indiana – 2007
3. Michigan – 2009

Nationally, the trend is very dramatic in states closing their state institutions from 1968, a high of 194,650 individuals in state institutions to 33,732 in 2009. See the chart in this testimony. (Page 8)

Ask yourself, “Is this where we as public servants should be investing scarce resources for our state?”

The national research of outcomes of closures and deinstitutionalization is extensive dating back to 1982 through 2011. The findings are quite conclusive on outcomes regarding quality of life, adaptive behaviors, and health of individuals and satisfaction of families:

- 1) Improved quality of life, including more choice-making opportunities, more friends, greater community participation, and greater residential satisfaction.<sup>i</sup>
- 2) Improved adaptive behaviors, including social skills, self-care, and domestic skills and inconsistent results regarding challenging behaviors.<sup>ii</sup>
- 3) Similar or improved health status and health care access, with some difficulty in accessing some types of health care such as dental services, and less polypharmacy.<sup>iii, i</sup>
- 4) Greater satisfaction of families with community placement versus the previous institutions, despite the fact that many families initially opposed deinstitutionalization.<sup>1,iv</sup>

Everyone can live in the community with the proper supports.

It is imperative that the individuals at Murray be properly supported for a successful transition to community living.

We already know how to do this.

What we need now is the political will to do the right thing and move this antiquated institutional system into a community system that supports everyone based upon their individual needs.

Billy Ray

Billy Ray has severe developmental disabilities and has a behavioral health condition. He has now lived in a CILA home for two years. He has health issues that require close monitoring, but in general he is calmer and happier. He has his own room. He likes to help around the house. He enjoys listening to music, walking in the neighborhood, going to workshop, shopping for groceries, dining out, and attending the occasional baseball game. He is living a life that no one thought was possible except his mother. His first community agency closed, so he went to Howe Developmental Center at the age of sixteen. After over twenty years at Howe, he moved to another community provider but it didn't work out. He came back to Howe, where he lived for several more years. His mother was concerned about his health and safety at Howe. She felt that his autistic characteristics were overlooked and that noise and stress caused him to act out. With the proper supports, Ray is doing well in the community.

Helen

Helen lived at home until she was an adult. She has autism and had become aggressive and self-abusive. She moved to Howe Developmental Center, where she lived until she was 48. She has now lived in a CILA home for several years. She has her own bedroom and has a kind of peace and independence she's never experienced in her adult life. She makes her own snacks and takes care of her own things. Her speech and ability to relate to other people has dramatically improved. She has a best friend and friends at her workshop. Helen enjoys parties and activities, but most of all enjoys sleeping in on a Saturday morning if she wants to and doing things at her own pace.

John

John has lived in a number of homes in the community over the years. Some worked out better than others. He moved to Howe Developmental Center after one such failure and lived there for a number of years before moving to another CILA home, where he has lived successfully for several years now. He is now able to see his parents more frequently. John has his own room and doesn't have to put up with others moving his possessions around. He has a cell phone and likes to keep in touch with his many friends. He enjoys sports and listening to the radio. John is very proud that he's achieving his goal of having a real job, working at McDonald's several days a week. He loves to advocate for himself and others. He belongs to advocacy groups, his agency's human rights committee, and has testified on the need for rebalancing and has met with legislators and members of the media.

Willa

Willa lived most of her adult life at Howe Developmental Center. She now lives in a CILA home and attends the same workshop she did when she lived at Howe, so she's kept in touch with her friends there. Her new home (for over two years now) is on a quiet street in an attractive neighborhood. She is responding well to the calm environment and has learned new words and phrases. She uses a wheelchair and the home is fully accessible. Her meals are pureed for her. She likes parties, movies, and dining out, but she also has personal shopping days for her own errands.

A change for better treatment No reason to fear community care

January 27, 2012 Gov. Pat Quinn announced plans last week to close two state mental health institutions and move their patients into community-based care. The governor is getting a ton of heat over this decision, from politicians, from parents of patients and from community leaders. Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr. said the state is "balancing its budget on the backs of our most vulnerable citizens."

Quinn is making the right decision. He's making a sound decision in terms of public health and the state's financial health.

The facilities that Quinn has targeted should have closed decades ago.

At the Tinley Park Mental Health Center in south suburban Chicago, just five of eight buildings on campus are operational. The federal government decertified it in 2009 amid quality concerns.

The downstate Jacksonville Developmental Center dates in part from the pre-Civil War 1850s. The state pays $1.2 million a year to buy coal for its antique heating system. The governor plans to close Tinley Park in July and Jacksonville in October.

This will result in a huge fiscal payoff for the state. Illinois spends on average between $150,000 and $210,000 every year to support a person in a state facility for developmental disabilities, according to the governor's office. The annual average cost in community care is $45,000 to $84,000.

If this were purely dollars and cents, if it put residents at risk, it wouldn't deserve support. But this is the right health care decision, too.

The evidence shows that community settings will give better care for the residents of the state facilities. It has worked in most states across the country that have undergone the shift. Illinois has the luxury of learning from the experience of Michigan, for instance. Quinn's staff has incorporated some important lessons into his plan — such as a person-centered approach and a commitment to follow-up monitoring.

The transfer creates some uncertainty for the residents and their parents and guardians. Citizens who have serious mental-health conditions are a vulnerable population.

The governor, though, has established a clear, workable framework for managing the transition to community care. His plan for closing these inefficient facilities takes every reasonable precaution. It puts the interests of residents first — as it should.

Each individual will receive a personal evaluation to determine the best possible placement. Families and guardians will play an active role in the determinations. Funding will follow each person to his new home. If a state-run institution is the best option, that will be available through other facilities that remain open.

After the transition, many people now locked into restrictive environments will live with greater freedom and comfort in smaller-scale homes located closer to their loved ones.

Dear COGFA Member, Thank you for coming to be with us today.

Some suggest closing Murray Center is a budget issue. May I humbly suggest It is really an issue of the importance we place on life. Murray Center provides services to individuals with developmental disabilities and mental incapacitation which require care 24/7, 365 which can't be provided elsewhere. I'm told the governor received letters from owners of private CILAS stating Illinois law doesn't require them to take DD and MI patients. Furthermore, they stated they didn't have the facilities nor staff to handle them. Closures previous to Murray's shows this is true. A University of Illinois study of 1048 individuals transitioned from 2001 to 2008 showed 25 returned to SODC, 61 were missing (homeless MIA), and 21 died. The issue becomes a Constitutional issue of the 'right to life'. Closing Murray Center is a 'death sentence' for 'innocents'. Their crime? Being born. Being born with a developmental disability and mental incapacitation. Ancient Sparta and Nazi Germany provided the death sentence for citizens born with disabilities. Illinois doesn't even put rapists, murderers, or serial killers to death. Yet, closing Murray would be a death sentence for 'innocents'. This is wrong. The Founding Fathers provided for the natural, God given rights of man, in the Constitution. They stated in the Declaration of Independence; "We find these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights that among these are the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. And that to procure these rights governments are instituted among men." Some might say maybe only twenty will die. One death caused by the state is too many. Will you be there to console their families? What if you were one of the twenty? Would you beg the Lord God Almighty for your life? Closing Murray Center will take the Constitutional right to life from the innocent. I urge you to put aside partisan politics, and spend your political capital wisely to protect the right to life. A Greater Power than our Governor will mark your actions. May I humbly urge you also to advise the Governor to keep Murray Center open? Anything else is less than the standard set by the Founding Fathers.

Closure of Murray Development Center
April 16, 2012

My name is Judy O'Malley and I reside in Godfrey, Illinois. I support closure of Murray Center and transitioning the residents into community through person centered planning.

I have Cerebral Palsy which significantly impacts major areas of my life. My father was adamant that I have a place of my own. When I was 23, I moved into Beverly Farms, a privately run institution at that time. In 1981, the state stepped in and made some changes. When that happened our freedoms were diminished. We no longer had many choices.

Then I moved into a group home of 12 and we went every where. The problem with that was we had to go as a group. If I wanted to go shopping and movies were scheduled, I had to go to the movies.

Now I live in my own apartment and have been there for 20 years this year. I love it. I serve on IMPACT CIL board of directors, volunteer 2 days a week at the Edwardsville Library and work out at the YMCA 2 days a week. As you can see my life is very full.

Many people look at me and believe I should live in an institution. My opinion is everyone can and should be supported in the community. There is a way to do it as you can see from me.
Thank you,

RESOLUTION 2012-06

“SAVE MURRAY CENTER”

WHEREAS, Warren G. Murray Developmental Center in Centralia was one of those on the list of state facilities that Illinois Governor Pat Quinn has targeted for closure in the next year; and

WHEREAS, this is the home for 280 people, some of which have resided here for over 30 years; and

WHEREAS, residents are the most vulnerable and fragile citizens in Illinois and caring for their needs requires careful consideration; and

WHEREAS, the effects of moving some patients can be deadly, as research validates; and

WHEREAS, Warren G. Murray Developmental Center employs a staff of 550 people who live in our communities and who are an important part of the economy of southern Illinois; and

WHEREAS, the current economic impact is an annual total of over $80 million with Warren G. Murray Developmental Center’s operating budget of $42 Million; and

WHEREAS, the current economic data suggest that Marion County and surrounding counties are the hardest hit by the economic downturn, and that unemployment rates in Marion County are above 10% - highest statewide already; and

WHEREAS, efforts to study the need for the continued operation of Warren G. Murray Developmental Center follow established guidelines and include the Committee for Government Forecast and Accountability’s recommendations to the Governor; and

WHEREAS, we join with the parents association of Warren G. Murray Developmental Center residents in a campaign to place “Save Murray Center” signs along US Route 50 and State Route 37; and

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Mayor and City Council of Salem, Illinois encourage all churches, businesses, schools and others with marquee signs to place a message of “Save Murray Center” on marquees in the City of Salem from March 30 – April 30, 2012 to affirm community support for keeping Warren G. Murray Developmental Center open and available for citizens with severe disabilities as a residential facility.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Salem, Illinois to be affixed this 5th day of March, 2012.

April 16, 2012

To whom it may concern:

The purpose of this letter is to first of all give my permission to Warren G. Murray Center of Centralia Illinois permission to use written or photograph material pertaining to my baby brother Lyndall Dale McDaniel in which I was Legal Guardian of.

Secondly it is to give my personal opinion of being 100% against the thought of closing Murray Center and other facilities like Murray Center. Our State is just one that is already in turmoil with the constant legal issues of neglect and mistreatment of elderly and mentally ill patient. Nursing Assistants are certified to care for the elderly, they are not qualified or educated to handle the special needs required for mentally and physically handicapped individuals.

My brother lived at Murray Center in Centralia for 22 years; it was not just a place where he lived it was his HOME where he was surrounded by qualified care givers who understood his physical disabilities and loved him as if he were their own family. That boy had more Cardinal & Nascar memorabilia than anyone I know and these things were not purchased by our family, they were bought by his Murray Center family.

We were forced to move Lyndall from Murray Center to a Belleville IL nursing home because his health had deteriorated and he required "skilled care" He received the worst care ever and was dead within 6 weeks at the young age of 39! My mother, sister and I took shifts throughout each day to make sure he was taken care of, we gave constant verbal & written care instructions to the staff and doctor's orders, but still we would find him with his face lodged against the bedrails because they did not follow doctors' orders and properly position him, daily he was laying in urine and feces soaked sheets & clothing, and sometimes choking on his vomit and tube feedings that was backing up into his lungs. It was completely devastating to see him removed from his home of 22 years and placed in a strange place with care givers who knew nothing about him or his beautiful personality and special care he required on a daily basis. He suffered emotionally, was homesick and wasn't physically able to speak to make his needs known to these strangers, he was vulnerable and at their mercy to do what was right and they failed him! We knew it would literally kill him to leave Murray Center, but we had no choice as the doctors felt it was medically necessary and we were forced to move him.

Nursing homes are not meant for handicapped persons; it will serve no purpose and will put our State in worst shape than it already is and will ultimately spend more funds fighting malpractice law suits from mistreatment, inadequate care and wrongful death and will create a constant legal battle plus devastate many people's lives.

Nursing homes have "Resident Rights" well what about "Handicapped Rights" don't they have a RIGHT to receive the RIGHT CARE?

Please do what is RIGHT for the people who call Murray Center their home, don't force them to be displaced, and suffer any more than they already have, allow them the right to stay in the only home most of them have ever known and receive the love and care provided by the qualified staff.

Thank you for allowing me to voice my opinion about this important matter.

Respectfully,

Tammy Stollard

Hello, my name is Victor L. Young and I've worked at the Warren G Murray Center for 13 years. I've been a Mental Health Technician, Dietary Aid, and I'm currently a Housekeeper. I believe we are more than just titles when you are employed with the Murray Center. I've also worked at a 4 and 8 bed Cila, and a 16 bed group home in Alton. Working at the Murray center has changed my life for the better as a person. Through working with residents with developmental disabilities has enriched my life in many ways. Murray fills a unique need for a specific population. The Murray center has been partly my home for more than a decade. The service provided here compares to few places in the entire Tri-state area. The Murray center shines in any area of care. The closure of the Murray center would be devastating to all of Southern Illinois! I thank the LCBFA representatives, and all the concerned community, and the family members here today.

Please Tell it 2 the Governor-----KEEP US OPEN

I want to talk about behavior.

In the population of Murray Center, there are 155 persons who have a psychiatric diagnosis in addition to an Intellectual disability. This is 56 %. In this population of Intellectually Disabled people who also have a Mental Illness, there are almost always varying degrees of inappropriate behaviors.

Nearly all of the people who have been admitted to Murray in the past 10 years were admitted because their behaviors could not be managed in their previous residence.

They've come from family homes, from CILA's, from jail, and a few came from another SODC. Several of our more recent admissions have been young, strong men who exhibit serious behaviors. While those behaviors don't happen every day, when they do occur, it is very dangerous.

The advantage we have at Murray in dealing with aggressive or self-abusive behaviors is the fact that we have enough available (trained) staff to avert or, if needed, manage the crisis. When attempts to de-escalate the situation are unsuccessful, often several staff must respond to the crisis. At Murray we are able accommodate that need. We don't call the police. We don't use tazers. We don't have people arrested and we don't send anyone to jail. We don't call an ambulance except for medical emergencies.

We have behavior/psych staff on site. Behavior intervention plans are developed by an Interdisciplinary Team of professionals and direct support staff and reviewed frequently. Adjustments are data driven. When medication is used, the goal is to use the least effective dose and effects are closely monitored by medical staff as well as the Individual Support Team.

Assuring the safety of the person in crisis and those around them communicates a sense of security to the person. At Murray Center, people served have said they know we can help them and we won't have to send them off to the psych ward or jail.

The fact that a person knows we will be here for them no matter what communicates unconditional care and acceptance, which is not provided in a small home with inadequate staff .

In a CILA with 2-4 residents and 1 staff person, that back up plan will be missing. There will be no one to get help. There will be no one to keep the other residents safe.

And the likely conclusion will be the person will end up in jail or over-medicated.

Keep Murray Center Open

COGFA statement

My name is Bill Henson and I pray upon this legislative group to make the recommendation to Governor Quinn to keep Murray Center open! As a Social Worker and QMRP with the Chester Mental Health Center, I recently endured the hardship and uncertainty of not knowing whether I was going to be displaced or possibly terminated when the Governor proposed to close Chester. Additionally, I witnessed the suffering that my peers, their families and the community endured.

Again, in my home town of Centralia, I find myself pleading with this committee to reconsider the Governor's proposal to close Murray Center. As with my experience at Chester, I am again witnessing unnecessary hardship on the staff, the families, the community, and most importantly on those who have the most to lose, the residents. My 45 year-old, developmentally disabled sister, Paula has called Murray Center home for essentially all of her life. She has limited cognitive abilities and essentially no understanding of the need to move nor does she have the coping skills to adapt to a new environment for any length of time. Paula is typical of the majority of the residents who only know Murray Center as home. Essentially the closing of this facility would disrupt and traumatize an already marginalized group of special individuals who would suffer emotionally and physically from this ill-advised proposal.

MY NAME IS ASHLEY TAYLOR. I AM A 12 YEAR OLD STUDENT AT CENTRALIA JR HIGH MURRAY CENTER HAS A SPECIAL PLACE IN MY HEART BECAUSE MY AUNT IS IN A GROUP HOME. MY FAMILY IS CONCERNED, NOT ONLY ABOUT THE FUTURE OF MURRAY CENTER RESIDENTS, BUT ALSO ABOUT THE QUALITY OF LIFE MY AUNT WILL HAVE IF RESIDENTS WITH SEVERE MEDICAL AND BEHAVIOR ISSUES ARE MOVED INTO HER HOME. AFTER HEARING MY FAMILY TALK, I DID WHAT MOST KIDS MY AGE DO. I SEARCHED THE INTERNET. ONE THING I ~~LOOKED~~<sup>LOOKED</sup> AT WERE THE COURT CASES BEHIND YOUR DECISION. YOU DISCUSS THE LIGAS CASE. WHEN I LOOKED AT THE DHS WEBSITE, IT STATED "THE DECREE DOES NOT FORCE INDIVIDUALS WHO DO NOT WANT COMMUNITY BASED SERVICES OR PLACEMENT TO MOVE" THE RESIDENTS AND FAMILY AT THE MURRAY CENTER DO NOT WANT TO MOVE, SO WHY ARE THEY BEING FORCED TO?

LET ME QUOTE JUSTICE GINBURG'S OPINION FROM THE OLMSTEAD WEBSITE "THE TRANSFER FROM THE CARE TO THE LESS RESTRICTIVE SETTING MUST NOT BE OPPOSED BY THE AFFECTED INDIVIDUAL" THAT WEBSITE ALSO SAYS "THE ADA IS NOT REASONABLY READ TO IMPEL STATES TO PHASE OUT INSTITUTIONS, PLACING PATIENTS IN NEED OF CLOSE CARE AT RISK" I THINK THIS CLOSURE IS LIMITING OPTIONS, NOT OPENING THEM.

I THINK IT IS AWESOME THAT WE HAVE PEOPLE COMING IN FROM OTHER COMMUNITIES ON BUSES, DEMANDING EQUALITY. I THANK YOU BEHALF OF MY AUNT, MY FAMILY, AND OTHERS WITH SPECIAL NEEDS. ~~THIS IS A GATED INSTITUTE~~<sup>HERE</sup> TODAY IS THEIR COMMUNITY WE WILL CONTINUE TO COMMIT<sup>AS</sup> RESOURCES IN THE FUTURE TO PROVIDE COMMUNITY ACCESSIBILITY. WE HAVE A GREAT VOLUNTEER GROUP FOR THOSE THAT CAN NOT GET OUT AND TRAVEL WITH THOSE FROM THE TRADITIONAL GROUP HOMES. I HOPE YOU TAKE THE TIME TO SEE THE MURRAY CENTER CAMPUS. IT IS A HOME, NOT A GATED INSTITUTION. WE THANK YOU FOR YOUR VISIT AND APPRECIATE IF YOU WOULD TAKE THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE BACK TO SPRINGFIELD:

HOME IS WHERE THE HEART IS. THE HEART OF MURRAY CENTER IS HERE, IN THIS SEA OF GREEN. FROM OUR HEART TO YOURS. SAVE THEIR HOME. SAVE MURRAY CENTER.

Closure of Murray Developmental Center
Friday, April 20, 2012
By Barbara M. Pritchard
Member of the Illinois Council on Developmental Disabilities and of the Community for All Coalition

- Hello, I am here today as the Co-Founder of the Community for All Coalition with my late husband Lester. My name is Barbara Pritchard.
- The most important issue to consider today is the Murray residents and the next steps in their lives.
- People should be free to move to the community of their choice with services and supports designed specifically for each individual around his or her wants and needs.
- No one can tell me that my institutionalized brothers and sisters in Illinois are harder to serve compared to other individuals who have successfully transitioned to the community in the 13 states as well as D.C. where all institutions have been closed.
- Let me introduce you to two friends of mine.

- This is Rena, who lived in an institution in Central, Illinois for many years. She cannot do any daily activities independently and she communicates only with her body language. Rena lived in a group home and now lives in an apartment with a roommate and the assistance of support workers. She is truly happy in the community.

- My friend Judy who has Cerebral Palsy lived in a private institution for many years. Judy has trouble with speech and doing all daily activities. She moved to a group home where everyone had to do the same thing, whether they wanted to or not. She now lives in an apartment with the help of support workers. She volunteers in her community and works out at the YMCA.
- We are at a pivotal point in Illinois. Closing Murray will be the first step in ensuring residents like Judy and Rena can live lives with choice, liberty, and happiness.
- I request COGFA members to vote for closure of Murray so that the residents can have the chance to achieve their dreams.

State Operated Developmental Centers Rebalancing Criteria and Explanations

Criteria	Explanation
SODC Specialization	Some of the SODC specialize in populations (e.g., Medically Fragile, Sensory Challenged, etc.) that present greater challenges to develop community capacity prior to transition of care of a resident, which may require more time to develop. The Number of Specializations served at the SODC is used to determine this criterion.
Staff Recruitment	In various parts of the state it is often more difficult to find, attract and secure various professional positions (nurses, therapists, etc.) necessary for active treatment. Open positions put residents at risk of not receiving vital services and the SODC at risk of decertification. It can also lead to significant overtime costs putting additional strain on already strained budgets and pension systems. Position vacancies, length of vacancies and amount of recruitment efforts are used to determine this criterion.
SODC Resident Community Access	A "Valued Outcome" determined by most advocates, families and professionals is Community Access. This means that SODC residents are supported and use community setting/services at a high or the same frequency as people without developmental disabilities. The range and the frequency of SODC resident community access are used to determine this criterion.
Service Quality and Oversight of Care	An effective quality assurance/quality management system remains in effect to ensure SODC residents remains safe and secure and the services they receive meet essential standards. SODC promotes opportunities to provide care consistent with modern standards of care and efficiency in the delivery of services. Health Department Surveys and Division on Developmental Disabilities Management Observations are used to determine this criterion.
Economy & Efficiency in Delivery of Service & Supports	SODC promotes economic efficiency in the delivery of services in relationship to the budget. Budget surplus and deficits over the past two years are used to determine this criterion.
SODC Age	The age of the SODC increases the likelihood that major capital expense for repairs and replacement of vital infrastructure are necessary in order to maintain security and/or safety. Older properties may also present architectural barriers that impede various resident programming. The age range the property falls in is used to determine this criterion.
Deferred Maintenance & Repairs Cost	SODC costs associated with deferred maintenance (boiler repair, road maintenance, utilities, building up keep and repairs, etc.) given the number of SODC residents served. The cost range associated with deferred maintenance is used to determine this criterion.
Environmental Concerns	SODC compliance with Life Safety Codes and minimal EPA violations. SODC presents environmental hazards that are unsafe and costly to remediate (Lead paint, asbestos, carbon emissions, underground fuel storage tanks, etc.). Degree of compliance is used to determine this criterion.
Federal Medicaid Decertification Risk	CMS survey findings identify deficiencies that place the SODC at risk of losing its certification, which in turn places SODC residents at risk and risks the significant loss of Federal funds. SODC Level of deficiencies is used to determine this criterion.
Economic Impact on Community	Economic Impact on SODC Community as measured by an "Index Number" calculated by dividing the number of lost SODC jobs by the size of the community local work force, multiplied by the unemployment rate of the SODC community. The range the Index Number falls in is used to determine this criterion.

	Criteria	Murray	Choate
1.	SODC Specialization	Very Diverse population making Murray a very well rounded center	Forensic Population that is in a holding pattern until they can go through the legal system
		Extreme Behavioral Cases from the community / Young and aggressive	Forensic program could be moved back to the Mental Health side where it came from for appropriate diagnosis determination
		Extreme Medical cases cannot be served in any community DD setting that exists today	Mild to Severe. Mild, severely behaviorally disordered, can move to Mental health beds as needed while their moderate folks able to move to the community
		Serve Mild (7%) to Severe/Profound (85%)
		Ambulatory to non-ambulatory
		Visual and hearing impaired
		G and J tubes
		Tracheostomies
2.	Staff Recruitment	Professional staff recruitment began in 2008 when SIUC Psych and BA students began using Murray as a clinical rotation. They were trying to get them to work into positions to help Murray and the community.	Medical Director began working at Franklin Hospital in January 2010 and the position is still vacant. Furthermore, they are only operating with 1 physician and use a very expensive contract for the physician coverage on both DD and MI.
		Since that internship began, one of the staff has been chosen to hire there and another is trying to work there but can't get the position approved to hire in. Their internal recruitment worked until they were put on a hiring freeze.	Choate Staffing ratio allocation is one of the highest in the state yet their overtime is extreme.
		Salary structure for new professional staff is well under the competing states and markets. Private hospitals pay much more than public for salary structures in some key positions.
		In 2007, LPN's were difficult to recruit in the area. Murray Center began offering clinical rotation to Kaskaskia College and Rend Lake College for recruitment efforts that have paid off as there are nurses available but Murray Center just cannot hire them because of the freeze. Murray has nurses on staff that are working in direct service waiting on approval from Springfield to transfer to nursing.

3.	SODC Resident Community Access	Half of the residents at Murray center attend an off campus Workshop. The Workshop is currently looking at providing meaningful programming for another 20.	Only 25% of the residents at Choate attend an off campus workshop
		The workshop coordinates with Murray Center to ensure their joint residents are off Murray's campus at least 3 times per month over and above the day program schedules.
		Murray residents that are at all able, participate in cooking classes and shop for their own foods and prepare their own meals. They sometimes bring food to their day settings for their fellow residents to share.
		Every night Murray groups go out to dinner, movies, local sporting events, etc.
4.	Service Quality and Oversight of Care	Murray Center has multiple QA activities and tracking tools ensuring HAB Plans are being followed.	IDPH deficiencies over the last 5 years have demonstrated a lack of oversight and consistency resulting in poor care going all the way back to the 450 page statement of deficiencies. Staff from other SODC's were called in to help.
		Murray Center QA staff have trained both state and workshop staff on the State policies for Level of Supervision, behavioral intervention plans, OT/PT issues/ swallowing evals, adaptive equipment, etc.
		Murray Center has rebuilt their QA Department ensuring standards are met.
		Murray Center has a clinical team that meets for all critical medical, behavioral and difficult cases ensuring the highest quality care is given. This committee even has available community staff participate thus ensuring consistency.

5.	Economy and Efficiency in Delivery of Services and Supports	According to the DHS website, Murray Center has operated within their budgeted allowance for many years.	According to the DHS website, Choate has operated outside of their budgeted allowance for many years
		Even within flat budgets and cuts Murray has remained fiscally responsible. Murray Center has done what has been asked of them	Choate has a higher staff to resident ratio than does Murray.
		They have held their budgets low and not been able to perform the needed maintenance in which they are being held accountable for now.	Choate was made to decertify over 100 beds due to life safety infractions according to IDPH.
		CMS stated Geothermal proposal would pay for itself in 3 years and save over 2M a year thereafter.	Furthermore, they were required to abandon even more buildings when they only operate out of 50%
			Asbestos and lead prevents them from even being able to demolish them
6.	SODC Age	49 years	150 years
		All but 1 building is currently certified and that one meets all life safety requirements.	Only one-half of the buildings are livable and meet life safety requirements.
		Capable of certification of an additional 28 beds of a renovated Cherry Cottage.	Had to decertify over 100 beds
		Needed capital monies would pay for themselves in 3 years and save over 2M a year after that.	Almost 30 M of renovations needed to meet life safety needs
7.	Deferred Maintenance and Repair Costs	With having a newer facility and conversion to Geothermal, Murray could save over 2M per year and the system pays for itself in three years	You would have to spend 30M to meet life safety code and would still have a very expensive overhead of operations to maintain.
		City of Centralia has stated they are willing to continue to provide reduced water rates and not increase costs when the other areas may be increasing	Items needing repaired are over 150 years old!
		Areas needing repaired are only 50 years old

8.	Environmental Concerns	Murray Center if converted to geothermal results in no EPA concerns plus demonstrating an environmental awareness to the community.	Over the last 5 years, Choate has been forced to abandon buildings due to not meeting code requirements and reduce by 100 beds
		All of the buildings on campus meet the Life safety requirements	These will now join all the other buildings on campus that cannot be demolished due to lead paint and asbestos issues.
		Coal burning power plant is providing heating, cooling and hot water.	Fire suppression and electrical components in the facility is outdated.
		Geothermal system will meet all three needs and pay for itself in three years.	There is a tunnel system under the campus that is very dangerous and is considered a hazardous area.
			Coal plant provides all electricity.
9.	Federal Medicaid Decertification Risk	At no point has Murray Center been threatened or been at risk for loss of federal certification.	Over the last 5 years, leadership has been sent to Choate in the efforts to try to keep them certified
			Although the facility still is accredited, due to the help of the other facilities, It still lacks in care being provided as sited by IDPH
			DOJ states "Based upon our investigation, we have concluded that certain conditions and practices violate the constitutional and federal statutory rights of its residents." As of 7/7/11 this investigation is continuing as the State received a 5 page letter from DOJ requesting additional information on Choate
			Equip For Equality has held numerous rallies at Choate campus calling for the closure of that facility due to inadequate care being provided and announced on their website it should be closed
10.	Economic Impact on Community	Centralia will be crippled in the wake of all the factory jobs that have been lost in the last 10 years. Murray center is the largest employer in the community.	Anna and the surrounding region will have a negative impact on the community;
		Centralia will lose 600 jobs	Anna would lose 365 jobs

Re: Investigation of the Clyde L. Choate Developmental Center, Anna, Illinois

Dear Governor Quinn:

I am writing to report the findings of the Civil Rights Division's investigation of conditions and practices at the Clyde L. Choate Developmental Center ("Choate"), in Anna, Illinois. On February 27, 2007, we notified then Governor Blagojevich of our intent to conduct an investigation of Choate pursuant to the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act ("CRIPA"), 42 U.S.C. § 1997. CRIPA gives the Department of Justice authority to seek remedies for any pattern or practice of conduct that violates the constitutional or federal statutory rights of persons with developmental disabilities who are served in public institutions.

On July 23-26 and September 17-20, 2007, we conducted an on-site review of care and treatment at Choate with expert consultants in various disciplines. During our visits, we interviewed Choate administrators, professionals, staff, and consultants, and visited residents in their residences, at activity areas, and during meals. Before, during, and after our site visits, we reviewed a wide variety of relevant State and facility documents, including policies and procedures, incident reports and investigations, and medical and other records relating to the care and treatment of Choate residents. In keeping with our pledge of transparency and to provide technical assistance, where appropriate, we conveyed our preliminary findings to State counsel and to certain State and facility administrators and staff during exit briefings at the close of our on-site visits.

We would like to express our appreciation to Choate administrators, professionals, and staff and to the State officials who participated in our visit for their assistance, cooperation, professionalism, and courtesy throughout our investigation. We hope to continue to work with the State and Choate officials in the same cooperative manner going forward.

In accordance with statutory requirements, we now write to advise you formally of the findings of our investigation, the facts supporting them, and the minimum remedial steps that are necessary to remedy the deficiencies set forth below. 42 U.S.C. § 1997b(a). In doing so, we note that many of the findings we make in this letter are due to or exacerbated by Choate's failure to focus its treatment and care on moving individuals into the most integrated settings appropriate to their needs in violation of Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581 (1999), including failures in: (A) behavioral, intellectual, communication, and psychiatric assessments; (B) behavioral interventions; (C) treatment planning; and (D) habilitation, communication, and special education programs and services. These deficiencies place individuals at greater risk of injuries related to their or others' maladaptive behaviors and make restrictions on their liberty due to use of seclusion or restraint more likely, undermining the treatment provided at Choate and potentially leading to prolonged institutionalization.

Based upon our investigation, we have concluded that certain conditions and practices at Choate violate the constitutional and federal statutory rights of its residents. In particular, we find that Choate fails to provide its residents with adequate: (A) transition planning and placement in the most integrated setting; (B) protection from harm; (C) health care, including psychiatric care and physical and nutritional management; (D) behavioral, habilitation, and communication services; (E) special education services; and (F) integrated treatment planning. See Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581 (1999); Youngberg v. Romeo, 457 U.S. 307 (1982); Title XIX of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1396; 42 C.F.R. Part 483, Subpart I (Medicaid Program Provisions); Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA"), 42 U.S.C. §§ 12101, 12132 et seq.; 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(d); Individuals with Disabilities Education Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. § 1401 et seq.; and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. § 794.

Despite these deficiencies, we wish to note several positive aspects of the care that Choate provides to its residents. Choate's grounds and buildings are well kept, and the living units are clean and presentable. Beyond these aesthetics, we also found that many of the staff members we interacted with showed genuine care and respect for Choate's residents, and we were impressed with clinical abilities of many of Choate's medical professionals, including the Director of Nursing and the Medical Director. Likewise, the forensic unit at Choate is impressive in many respects, particularly in its focus on habilitating its forensic residents so that they can move as expeditiously as possible to less restrictive settings appropriate to their needs.

Nevertheless, two significant concerns underlie many of the findings we set forth in this letter. First, we found a critical lack of oversight and supervision pervading most aspects of the care and treatment provided at Choate. This derived, in part, from vacancies in certain key positions. More fundamentally, however, we found that Choate is not collecting, analyzing, and synthesizing information adequately so that its administrative and clinical leadership can accurately determine whether Choate's residents are safe, whether their needs are being met, and whether the treatment and habilitation provided at Choate are effective. The failure to collect and analyze information adequately has also undermined Choate's ability to integrate information across disciplines and provide coordinated and collaborative care. These failures have led to substantial constitutional violations.

Second, we noted a profound inattentiveness to Olmstead's requirement of placing residents at Choate in the most integrated setting consistent with their needs. Generally accepted professional standards and federal law require that the treatment of individuals with developmental disabilities be focused on the development of skills and abilities that aid those individuals in overcoming their personal barriers to living as independently as possible. Thus, a focus on helping individuals move to live successfully in more integrated settings should underlie all aspects of the care and treatment provided at Choate. Unfortunately, unlike Choate's forensic unit where movement to more integrated settings appears to be emphasized, we found that this emphasis did not characterize the provision of treatment at Choate generally. As previously noted, many of the findings we make in this letter are aggravated by Choate's failure to focus its treatment and care on moving individuals into the most integrated settings appropriate to their needs.

I. BACKGROUND

Located in Anna, Illinois, approximately 105 miles outside of St. Louis, Missouri, Choate is a licensed 200-bed intermediate care facility for individuals with developmental disabilities. Choate is one of nine residential developmental centers operated by the Illinois Department of Human Services ("DHS"). Choate also operates the State's only forensic unit for individuals with developmental disabilities, which has a total bed capacity of 30 residents. At the time of our visits in July and September 2007, Choate housed approximately 175 residents. In addition, DHS operates a psychiatric hospital on the Choate campus, but that hospital was not included in our review.

II. FINDINGS

A. Choate's Transition and Discharge Planning Is Inadequate

Choate fails to provide transition and discharge planning consistent with federal law. This failure to provide adequate transition and discharge planning was made evident when we requested a "list of all residents with community placement goals" during our visit, and we were provided a list that only included the names of six individuals out of the 175 individuals residing at Choate. Moreover, the monthly review meetings we attended and the monthly review summaries we reviewed included virtually no discussion of discharge planning, and when they did discuss it, they cited inappropriate barriers to discharge, such as weight management and management of diabetes, neither of which prevent community placement. The failure to provide adequate discharge planning deprives the individuals confined at Choate of their rights under Olmstead. The State's failure to comply with Olmstead also contributes significantly to the constitutional violations we identify in the remainder of this letter.

Federal law requires that Choate actively pursue the timely discharge of residents to the most integrated, appropriate setting that is consistent with the residents' needs. Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 607. Thus, at the time of admission and throughout a resident's stay, Choate should: (1) identify, through professional assessments, the factors that likely will foster viable discharge for the resident; and (2) use these factors to drive treatment planning, habilitation, and intervention. Without clear and purposeful identification of such factors, residents will be denied habilitation and other services and supports that will help them acquire, develop, and/or enhance the skills necessary to function in a community setting.

The Choate discharge planning process substantially deviates from generally accepted professional standards and federal law. The inadequacies in Choate's discharge planning process are intertwined with the other deficiencies in the care and treatment provided at Choate: the failures in other disciplines undermine Choate's ability to place individuals in the most integrated setting, while the failure to move individuals to the most integrated setting consistent with their needs is a fundamental cause of the constitutional violations in the care and treatment provided at Choate. As discussed in further detail in Section II.D.1.a, infra, Choate's behavioral, intellectual, and communication assessments are inadequate, undermining Choate's ability to determine the strengths and needs of individuals so they can be placed in the community. Choate does not appear to be performing these assessments on a timely basis, nor does it appear to be focused on determining the barriers to returning the individual to a community setting.

Relatedly, Choate's psychiatric assessments, diagnoses, and monitoring of psychotropic medications are inadequate, suggesting that the use of these medications may be counter-therapeutic in some instances, as discussed in further detail in Section II.C.2. In particular, the failure to attempt to determine minimally effective dosages suggests that individuals may be receiving inappropriately high dosages of medications that are being used to restrain, rather than treat, maladaptive behaviors, and that inhibit the ability to treat the maladaptive behavior through appropriate behavioral interventions. The unjustified use of psychotropic medications can significantly impair the other treatment and habilitation provided at Choate, and hinder an individual's ability to move to a more integrated setting.

Because Choate fails to provide adequate behavioral, intellectual, communication, and psychiatric assessments, the behavioral interventions based on those assessments are inadequate as discussed in further detail in Section II.D.1.b, and the interventions do not assist individuals in developing the skills they need to be able to live in a more integrated setting. Indeed, as discussed in further detail in Section II.D.1.b, we found many instances where individuals were receiving inappropriate or insufficient behavioral interventions, including multiple examples where individuals had been identified as having significant maladaptive behaviors but were not receiving any structured behavioral interventions. The failure to implement timely and appropriate behavioral interventions often leads to regression in the functional abilities necessary to live in a more integrated setting and, as discussed in further detail in Section II.B.3, may lead to further restrictions on an individual's liberty, including seclusion and restraint. Further, the failure to implement appropriate behavioral interventions places these individuals at risk of injuries related to their or others' maladaptive behaviors, which may hinder their treatment at Choate and lead to prolonged institutionalization.

Moreover, we found that the habilitation programs at Choate do not meet constitutional standards as discussed in further detail in Section II.D.2. Choate's provision of continuous active treatment is infrequent and is not designed to meet the habilitation needs of the individuals residing at Choate adequately. Relatedly, in our review of the Personal Service Plans ("PSP") at Choate, as discussed in further detail in Sections II.D.2 and II.F.1, infra, we found that they lacked any section devoted to discharge planning. Treatment of individuals at Choate should be focused on the barriers to community placement and the provision of skills to overcome those barriers. Therefore, while Choate does identify some barriers to community placement in the PSPs, the PSPs do not list specific plans to address those barriers. Relatedly, the monthly review meetings of the treatment teams do not routinely address discharge planning and barriers to placement. The failure to focus treatment planning, habilitation, and interventions on enabling the individual to return to the community is a substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards and the requirements of Olmstead.

We also found that Choate's provision of communication services, including speech and language programming and services for individuals with hearing impairments, did not meet generally accepted professional standards, as discussed in further detail in Section II.D.3. The development of communication skills greatly facilitates movement toward more integrated settings for individuals with developmental disabilities, as it is these skills that enable them to communicate their needs and concerns and to avoid engaging in maladaptive behavior that may lead to prolonged institutionalization. Effective communication skills enable the individual to become less dependent on others for their basic needs, including medical care, and to access essential services at the time of their choosing, which are required for living in less restrictive settings.

Finally, Choate's failure to provide adequate special education services hinders individuals' ability to live in more integrated settings, as discussed in further detail in Section II.E. Education is both an aspect of living in the most integrated setting and an essential means of obtaining the skills necessary to live in such a setting. Individuals residing at Choate have a right to special education services under federal law, and the failure to provide those services impairs their ability to participate and integrate into more integrated settings.

B. Choate Does Not Adequately Protect Individuals From Harm

The Supreme Court has recognized that persons with developmental disabilities who reside in state-operated institutions have a "constitutionally protected liberty interest in safety." Youngberg, 457 U.S. at 318. Therefore, as the Court explained, the state "has the unquestioned duty to provide reasonable safety for all residents" within the institution. Id. at 324. In our judgment, Choate fails to provide a living environment that complies with this constitutional mandate.

Choate does not adequately protect its residents from harm and risk of harm and does not provide its residents with a reasonably safe living environment. Specifically, individuals residing at Choate are subject to repeated injuries of similar nature, unchecked self-injurious behavior, abuse, and neglect. The harm Choate residents experience as a result of these deficiencies is multi-faceted and includes physical injury; psychological harm; excessive and inappropriate use of restraints; and inadequate, ineffective, and counterproductive treatment. This harm undermines the other care and treatment provided at Choate, prolongs the time period spent by individuals in the institution, and delays the movement of individuals to more integrated settings in violation of Olmstead. The facility's ability to address this harm is hampered by inadequate incident, risk, and quality management and deficient investigative practices.

1. Incident and Risk Management Is Inadequate

Choate's incident and risk management systems are inadequate to protect its residents from harm. To ensure that residents' constitutional right to safety is protected, generally accepted professional standards require that residential developmental disability facilities maintain an incident and risk management system that seeks to prevent incidents and requires appropriate corrective action when incidents do occur. Effective incident and risk management depends on: (1) accurate data collection and reporting; (2) thorough investigations; (3) identification of actual or potential risks of harm, including the tracking and trending of data; and (4) implementation and monitoring of effective corrective and/or preventive actions. The incident and risk management system at Choate falls significantly short of these standards and, as a result, residents are exposed to actual and potential harm.

a. Incident Reporting Is Deficient

Our review of Choate's incident reporting process found significant deficiencies resulting in substantial underreporting of incidents, events, and risks that affect the health and safety of residents at Choate. These deficiencies are caused by a procedural and policy failure to require that all incidents are reported to quality assurance personnel, as well as a lack of understanding of incident reporting guidelines by Choate staff.

First, according to policy, Choate only collects and analyzes incident data when an injury occurs. Choate limits incident types to accidents, peer-to-peer aggression, self-injurious behaviors, and injuries of an unknown origin. Therefore, for an incident to be included in an individual's data, and thus in the facility's aggregate data, an individual must have been harmed to such an extent that an Injury Report was warranted. The failure to include incidents that do not include an injury precludes Choate from being able to conduct analyses before an injury occurs, anticipate potential areas of harm, and take corrective action. To the extent that Choate's incident reporting policies only require incidents that result in injury to be reported, they substantially depart from generally accepted professional standards and promote constitutional violations.

Second, during our tour of Choate, we also found a lack of staff awareness about the current incident reporting policy. We were initially advised that the incident reporting policy had either just been revised or was under revision, but nevertheless all staff had been trained on the new policy and were expected to implement it. When we requested a copy of the policy, we were informed that the policy was not yet available. During our tour of the facility, however, a unit director indicated that a policy notebook had just recently been provided, but it was kept in the unit director's office, not on the unit. According to the unit director, training on the new policy was to begin the following week. When asked about the contents of the new policy notebook, the unit director indicated that he had not yet reviewed it. The level of confusion regarding incident reporting suggests that incident reporting is not being performed uniformly, casting considerable doubt on the reliability of the data collected in these reports.

Our review of Choate's incident report data in conjunction with individuals' clinical records, external notification reports, and similar sources indicated that the incident reporting data were unreliable. A significant number of incidents and injuries are not being received and reported in the facility's aggregate data used for tracking and trending.<sup>1</sup> For example, the following incidents were found in clinical records or external notification reports, but were not included in an individual's or the facility's aggregate data:

- On April 3, 2007, an individual complained of ear pain and a plastic object was discovered in the ear canal, requiring removal by an Ear, Nose, and Throat Specialist;
- On April 6, 2007, an individual fell and sustained two lacerations to his forehead that required sutures;
- On July 11, 2007, a resident's lip was lacerated after being punched by another resident; and
- On July 17, 2007, a resident threw a chair at a peer, hitting him in the face, and first aid was necessary.

<sup>1</sup> We also found that Choate's aggregate data on restraint usage is not an accurate reflection of actual restraint use at the facility. For example, we were provided with a report purporting to show restraint usage by person from January 1, 2006 through July 26, 2007, but we found a number restraints documented elsewhere in facility records that were not included in this report.

Over time, the failure to properly report all incidents is even more troubling, as demonstrated by the following examples:

- Between April 1, 2007, and July 23, 2007, an individual was reportedly injured on three occasions, but a thorough record review revealed injuries on at least eleven separate occasions; and
- Between April 1, 2007, and July 23, 2007, according to the report data, a resident only had one incident of “attempted pica,”<sup>2</sup> while other records, including radiology reports and three internal investigations into alleged neglect, revealed that the resident had successfully ingested a necklace on May 20, 2007, and a metal screw on May 21, 2007. In several other instances recorded in progress notes, the resident threatened pica behavior, and in one instance punched a staff member in the mouth when the staff member attempted to redirect him. None of these “threatening pica” incidents was recorded in his behavioral tracking data.

Choate’s failure to properly report these incidents jeopardizes its ability to identify potential risks of harm and institute appropriate intervention strategies. Indeed, in the latter example, if some of the “threatening pica” behaviors had been correctly reported and tracked in the resident’s behavioral data, it is possible that the ingestion of the necklace and screw could have been prevented through timely intervention. Choate’s failure to report adequately incidents and injuries departs substantially from generally accepted professional standards and violates the constitutional rights of the individuals who reside at Choate.

b. Choate Fails to Identify Risk of Harm and Implement Preventive Actions

While incident management focuses on the collection and aggregation of data that are meaningful to protect an individual from harm, risk management focuses on identifying actual or potential harm from that data and taking timely action to prevent the harm from occurring. Specifically, risk management involves: (1) identification of actual or potential risks of harm based on historical data, diagnoses, and co-morbid conditions; (2) timely and appropriate intervention strategies designed to reduce or eliminate the risks of harm; and (3) monitoring of the efficacy of the intervention strategies and modifying the strategies in response to further data. Choate fails to provide adequate risk management to its residents.

<sup>2</sup> Pica is a medical condition in which a person ingests or attempts to ingest nonfood substances such as clay, chalk, hair, or glue.

The rate at which harm is occurring, combined with the patterns of the harm, indicate that Choate is failing to identify risks of harm and intervene in a timely manner. Although Choate's incident and injury data are significantly underreported, as described in the previous section, even the data that are reported show that incidents and injuries are frequent and severe. For example, from January 1, 2007, to March 31, 2007, a 90-day period, one individual suffered 42 injuries from self-injurious behaviors, "accidental events," or assaults by peers. The number of injuries increased each month, from 11 in January, 14 in February, to 17 in March. Another individual, a forty-three-year-old blind resident with severe mental retardation, sustained injuries on ten different occasions from April 2007 to June 2007, including a head laceration, a fractured thumb, and multiple abrasions and bruises. Incidents and injuries occurring with such regularity and severity suggest a failure to identify actual or potential risks to individuals and to respond with appropriate interventions.

Even where risks have been identified, however, Choate has inadequately addressed these risks. During our tour, we discovered one individual, A.A.,<sup>8</sup> whose September 2006 Individualized Program Plan ("IPP") noted that she had sustained several injuries during the past year during transfers, because she is not cooperative with the procedure. The Physical Therapy section of the September 2006 IPP noted that "it is harder for one person to transfer" A.A. Nevertheless, no plan was instituted to prevent further injuries, and one-person transfers continued. Throughout 2007, A.A. continued to suffer injuries during transfers, including bruises, scratches, and lacerations. Only after A.A. suffered a head laceration from a fall during a one-person transfer in July 2007 did a physician order that all future transfers be performed by two people. Having identified that A.A. was at risk of harm during transfers in September 2006, ten months before the physician's order, Choate's failure to intervene in a timely and appropriate manner deviates substantially from generally accepted professional standards and violates A.A.'s constitutional rights.

The intervention strategies that Choate has implemented are also not monitored sufficiently to ensure that they prevent recurrences of potentially harmful behavior. For example, a resident who inserted a metal needle and a plastic pick into her ears in response to ear irritation, causing bleeding in her ears, was placed on 24-hour supervision and had all personal belongings confiscated that could potentially be placed in her ears. Approximately ten days later, after the ear infection subsided, all monitoring ceased and her belongings were returned. The individual continued to complain about ear irritation for the next two months, but no measures were taken. The resident was then found bleeding from one ear, and an object was discovered deep inside the inner ear canal which had to be removed by an Ear, Nose, and Throat Specialist. The short-term intervention of 24-hour supervision and removal of certain objects was insufficient to prevent the potential for future harm, and no further intervention was devised despite the resident's ongoing ear complaints.

<sup>8</sup> To protect individuals' privacy, we identify them by initials other than their own. We will separately transmit to the State a schedule that cross-references the initials with individuals' names.

In short, we found that individuals suffer harm as a result of Choate's substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards in the three main components of risk management: risk identification, timely interventions, and monitoring of outcomes. These conditions violate the Constitution.

c. Investigative Practices Are Deficient

Constitutional mandates and generally accepted professional standards dictate that facilities like Choate investigate serious incidents such as alleged abuse and neglect, serious injury, and death. During the investigation, evidence should be systematically identified, collected, preserved, analyzed, and presented. Investigators should attempt to determine the underlying cause of the incident by, among other things, reviewing staff's adherence to programmatic requirements such as policies and procedures. Such investigations are necessary to comply with an institution's duty to provide reasonable safety.

The investigative process at Choate substantially departs from these standards. As an initial matter, we noted during our tour that, in many cases, Choate permits staff against whom allegations have been made to return to duty before the investigation is complete or a well-supported, preliminary determination that the employee poses no risk to individuals or the integrity of the investigation has at least been made. Even though Choate indicates that this is only done when there is no credible evidence immediately available to support the allegation, this practice is still troubling. It permits a staff member who has been accused of abuse or neglect to potentially commit further abuse or neglect if the preliminary decision to return them to their normal job was incorrect. Furthermore, it affords the staff member the opportunity to contaminate the investigation through coercion of potential witnesses, whether that coercion is real or merely perceived. Choate should not continue to permit this practice.

Moreover, Choate's actual investigations substantially depart from generally accepted professional standards in violation of the Constitution. Our review of Choate's investigations from November 2006 to July 2007 revealed that, out of 81 investigations conducted, not a single one of the allegations of abuse or neglect was substantiated. Although there is an option for reconsideration of investigative findings, Choate has not requested reconsideration since 2005. The complete lack of substantiation of abuse and neglect allegations is suggestive of incomplete and inadequate investigations.

Our review confirmed that the investigations are indeed inadequate. We found numerous cases where questionable inferences were drawn based on the facts presented, and many in which relevant questions were left unanswered. For example, an individual who eloped from Choate in March 2007 was aided in that effort by a staff member with whom he had an ongoing relationship. After the elopement, the individual and staff member went to the staff member's home and had sexual relations. According to the resident, sometime following his elopement, but while he was still at the staff member's home, someone from Choate called the staff member to inform her that the resident had eloped. While it is possible that this was merely a routine phone call to a staff member who knew the resident, it strongly suggests that someone at Choate was aware of the relationship between the staff member and the resident. There is no indication in the investigative record that anyone sought to determine who the caller was, or why that person would place a call to the staff member's home. Since the staff member has now been charged with sexual assault of a minor, it is possible that the caller was an accessory to the alleged crime, yet no follow-up was performed. This is a serious oversight in the investigative process. It is also noteworthy that neither of the staff members responsible for checking the resident's bed every 15 minutes had an allegation of neglect substantiated by investigators, even though the State regulatory agency required Choate to retrain both of them on this process.

Another example of inadequate investigations involves a pica incident, referenced earlier, in which an individual ingested a necklace. Despite two eyewitness accounts by Choate residents stating that they observed a nurse leave the necklace on a table and then saw the individual pick it up and swallow it, Choate's investigators credited the testimony of the nurse, who denied placing a necklace on the table, and another staff member, who simply stated that he never saw the necklace in the room during a room sweep. The reasons given for doubting the witnesses' accounts were weak, while the staff members had a clear motivation to deny their involvement. Even if the inferences drawn were correct, however, the failure to include sufficient detail to support these inferences in the investigative record demonstrates that the investigative process is inadequate.

We also saw evidence that the investigations were result-driven and were not a full inquiry into the circumstances that led to the incident or injury. For instance, the individual involved in the pica incident noted above was the subject of two other investigations of pica incidents, and all three were determined to be unsubstantiated. In one of the incidents, the investigator reported to Choate that “[a]t this point, with no negative outcome for the client, there is no credible evidence.” This suggests that the outcome of the investigation hinged more on whether the individual suffered harm than whether neglect actually took place. This is a troubling approach to investigations, especially in light of the individual’s ongoing pica behaviors, which a detailed investigation may have aided in preventing.

Finally, we observed that investigations at Choate tend to ignore trends in allegations. For example, we noted that, between November 2006 and June 2007, one staff member was alleged to have smothered the faces of three different residents. This is a highly specific allegation, and its repetition by different individuals warranted further investigation. Similarly, during the same time period, another staff member was alleged to have threatened four separate individuals with physical harm, including death, if they did not do as directed. Choate’s apparent failure to detect these trends and perform further inquiry is a significant departure from generally accepted professional standards for investigations.

Choate’s deficient investigative practices undermine its ability to respond to situations of abuse and neglect, and increase the likelihood that harm will continue. Because investigations are not thorough, staff members who may have potentially abused or neglected residents at Choate were permitted to continue interacting with and caring for residents, leading to the potential for future harm. The failure to take adequate steps to prevent this harm violates the constitutional rights of the individuals who reside at Choate.

2. Quality Management Is Inadequate

Constitutional requirements and generally accepted professional standards mandate that a facility like Choate develop and maintain an integrated system to monitor and ensure quality of care across all aspects of care and treatment. An effective quality management program must incorporate adequate systems for data capture, retrieval, and statistical analysis to identify and track trends. The program should also include a process for monitoring the effectiveness of corrective actions taken in response to problems that are discovered.

Choate substantially departs from these standards. We found that Choate’s quality management system was highly compartmentalized rather than integrated, and there was a lack of communication among departments. Often, multiple forms must be filled out for the same incident, but they are sent to different departments, increasing the likelihood of discrepancies among the data reported. As discussed earlier in this report, there were significant discrepancies between data reported in the progress notes, clinical records, or external agency notifications and the individual's and facility's aggregate data. When asked, Choate's quality assurance administrator was unable to explain why these discrepancies existed. The administrator was unable to account for why numerous incidents found in the progress notes or agency notifications were not found in the aggregated data maintained in the quality management department. The inadequacies of the current quality management system have resulted in an environment where harm has occurred without recognition or resolution and will continue to occur if better systems are not put into place.

3. Seclusion and Restraint Usage At Choate Violates Constitutional Standards

Constitutional mandates and generally accepted professional standards require that, in an institution like Choate, restraints only be used when imminent risk of harm to oneself or others is present. Our review of Choate's records indicate that Choate's restraint practices substantially depart from this standard.

Despite recent efforts to reduce use of restraints, Choate continues to use restraints routinely, and often places individuals in four-point and even five-point restraints<sup>4</sup> for unreasonably long periods of time, frequently without ever having attempted to use less intrusive measures. Choate's records indicate that several individuals were restrained in this manner, on average, for more than two and a half hours. Some restraints were much longer; we found examples of individuals who were placed in mechanical restraints for more than six consecutive hours, including:

- A.A., who was restrained for approximately four hours and eight hours, separated by a two hour and 15 minute time of release, in July 2007;
- B.B., who was held in mechanical restraints for seven consecutive hours in December 2006; and
- C.C., who was restrained for nearly six consecutive hours in October 2006.

<sup>4</sup> In a four-point restraint, an individual is placed on his bed on his back and his wrists and ankles are secured by nylon straps; a five-point restraint includes all the elements of a four-point restraint, with the addition of a strap placed across the individual's chest.

Most egregiously, during his last ten days at Choate before discharge, D.D. was held in four-point or five-point restraints for nine consecutive hours on two occasions, twelve consecutive hours on another occasion, and approximately sixteen consecutive hours on yet another occasion. In total, this individual spent more than 45 hours in restraints during his last ten days at Choate. This high-level of restraint use departs substantially from generally accepted professional standards and violates the restrained individuals' constitutional rights.

C. Choate Does Not Provide Adequate Health and Psychiatric Care

1. Health Care Is Reactive and Uncoordinated

The Supreme Court has determined that institutionalized persons with developmental disabilities are entitled to adequate medical care. Youngberg v. Romeo, 457 U.S. at 324. The Court labeled this as one of the "essentials of care that the State must provide." Id. There are many positive aspects of medical care at Choate. In particular, the facility has the benefit of clinically competent, dedicated physicians and nursing leadership. These disciplines, however, are currently not structured in a manner allowing them to be sufficiently responsive to the population they serve, exposing individuals to risk of harm.

Foremost, health care at Choate is reactive rather than forward-looking. Reactive health care occurs when an individual's access to care depends upon the person presenting themselves for assessment and treatment, while proactive health care requires medical professionals to identify individuals at risk, to perform assessments, and to provide appropriate treatment. In a residential disability center setting such as Choate, individuals are often unable to articulate their health status to staff or request medical attention due to intellectual or developmental disabilities. Given these conditions, constitutional mandates require Choate to ensure that the health care provided is sufficiently proactive to identify potential health issues, to intervene before harm or suffering occurs due to illness or injury, and to provide access to health care as soon as possible once symptoms indicating a health problem arise. Regrettably, due to reactive health care delivery, Choate often fails to do enough to identify, assess, treat, and monitor its residents, especially those with complex and high-risk conditions. Choate's provision of reactive medical care undermines the other care and treatment provided at Choate and may unnecessarily prolong individuals' stay at Choate. A.A., discussed in Section II.B.1.b, had 24 injury reports from October 13, 2006 to July 11, 2007, for an average of 2.6 per month. A significant number of these injuries occurred during transfers of A.A. to and from her wheelchair. While Choate responded appropriately to each individual injury when it occurred, we could not find any evidence that her treatment team recognized this high rate of injury and formulated a plan to address it. Only after a fall in July 2007 did A.A.'s physician order all transfers be performed by two people. Choate's failure to take steps to prevent harm to A.A. is a substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards and violates A.A.'s constitutional rights.

Choate's medical staff primarily utilizes a "sick-call" system to respond medically to individuals once direct care staff or a nurse has identified a resident with symptoms that warrant further assessment by a physician. Once identified as needing a physician's care, Choate residents are typically examined and evaluated by a physician at one of the clinical examination rooms on the facility's campus. Choate's use of clinic-based treatment is standard community practice and is acceptable in a developmental disability center setting. However, this model is not a substitute for methods necessary to ensure that health care providers are adequately monitoring the health status of residents and responding in a timely fashion. In this regard, attending physicians at Choate should also conduct clinical rounds on the residential units to facilitate routine interaction with direct care staff knowledgeable about residents' medical status. Furthermore, clinical rounds would provide attending physicians an opportunity to assess residents in their living environment, where they are likely to learn about and address health related matters with residents before more serious signs of illness occur.

Choate's reactive approach to health care is compounded by the ineffective coordination of health care services at the facility. There is often inadequate collaboration and coordination between and among the various health care disciplines. Failure to coordinate health care appropriately increases the likelihood that health professionals will pursue a course of treatment that may negatively impact another health care provider's treatment and jeopardize the overall care that a resident ultimately receives. Risk to residents is further increased as residents' charts often do not adequately reflect the health care decision-making process or reveal clearly what is happening with residents. Current and future plans of care are difficult to discern from the charts, placing residents at risk of harm because of poor communication and lack of coordination about their care and treatment. The following examples demonstrate the poor communication and lack of coordination in the provision of health care services at Choate, as well as the serious omissions from the medical charts, and emphasize the constitutionally significant harm that can occur from these deficiencies:

- E.E.'s May 2007 monthly review indicates that his neurologist recommended increasing the amount of one medication he received, until he was informed by E.E.'s primary physician that a higher dose of that medication had, in the past, produced ataxia, an inability to control voluntary muscular disorders. This suggests that this information was not in his medical chart, was not in a part of his chart that his neurologist typically would have reviewed, or was not communicated from one discipline to the other, as his primary physician had clear knowledge of these past effects. Had E.E.'s primary physician not discovered this recommendation, E.E. would likely have suffered further harm. E.E.'s physician's knowledge of E.E.'s medical history is impressive and speaks well of his competence. Nevertheless, a health care system's reliance on an individual's recollection, rather than an accurate, accessible medical record, is inappropriate and unsafe;

- F.F. was found unresponsive in his room on April 14, 2007, and was taken to the local hospital. According to the admitting doctor at the local hospital, his "history is extremely sketchy, most of the information is available from the Emergency Room." This statement strongly suggests that the information Choate provided to the local hospital was inadequate; and
- Similarly, on February 23, 2007, G.G. was admitted to the local hospital for treatment of pneumonia. Her January 25, 2007, Behavior Intervention Plan indicates that she was receiving 500 milligrams of Clozapine, but the admitting note does not indicate that she was on this medication when listing her medications, despite indicating that the admitting doctor had a conversation with her primary physician at Choate. There is no indication in the record that the medication had been discontinued before her admission to the hospital. If this medication was in fact inadvertently discontinued at the time of her admission, she would have gone from receiving a significant dose of the medication to none at all in one 24-hour period.

Other factors also serve to diminish the level of coordinated health care at Choate. For instance, Choate's medical, psychiatric, and psychology staff rely heavily on informal meetings and conversations to relay information about residents' health care status. Unfortunately, in many instances, the underlying facts of these discussions are never recorded as part of the individual's medical history. As a result, Choate health professionals have failed to identify situations where individuals required additional health consultations with other Choate or community-based health care providers. For example, E.E. has an active psychotic disorder and a seizure disorder that have been well-documented for several years. Choate's past trials of antipsychotic medications have produced an increase in seizures, so they were suspended. While the suspension of the trials may be reasonable, it does not appear that Choate professionals have considered obtaining a specific neuropsychiatry consultation to attempt to identify an antipsychotic agent that would not lower his seizure threshold. In our review, we also noted that residents' charts and records often did not contain discharge summaries from outside hospitals or emergency room visits, and that documentation of discussions with external specialty consultations was inconsistent, ranging from excellent to non-existent. This is a substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards.

These deficiencies in overall medical care place residents at risk, but there is even greater risk for residents in two discrete areas of care: (1) the administration of psychotropic medication; and (2) physical and nutritional management services.

2. Administration of Psychotropic Medication Departs Substantially From Generally Accepted Practices

Psychotropic medications are not dispensed in accordance with generally accepted professional standards at Choate. Constitutional and professional standards dictate that psychotropic medications are prescribed consistent with a documented psychiatric diagnosis and empirically-based evidence of the medications' efficacy. Moreover, psychiatric professionals should record empirically-based evidence of the psychotropic medications' efficacy, along with all attempts to determine the minimum effective dose of the medication for the resident. Without this information, treating professionals are unable to conduct an adequate risk analysis to determine whether the medication's inherent side effects are outweighed by the efficacy of the drug. The inappropriate use of psychotropic medications may undercut the other care and treatment provided at Choate, making it more difficult for the individual to move to a more integrated setting.

During our tour, we discovered that several individuals at Choate were receiving psychotropic medications, including first generation psychotropics, at dosages well-above accepted therapeutic dosages without any empirical evidence of the medications' efficacy or any attempts to identify the medication's minimum effective dose. The medications for the following individuals are illustrative of these problems:

- H.H. has been prescribed 75 milligrams of Haloperidol per day, a much higher dose than is usually utilized. Our review of his records indicated that there is no documentation of psychotic symptoms, and the frequency of his monitored behaviors is low. Moreover, his behavioral difficulties appear to be, in part, secondary to a closed head injury in childhood. Nevertheless, Choate has not made any attempt to decrease the amount of Haloperidol he receives; and
- I.I. was given 50 milligrams of Haloperidol per day until May 3, 2007, at which time her prescription was reduced to 48 milligrams of Haloperidol per day. Our consultant could not find any empirical data to support this large of a dose of Haloperidol. Indeed, when I.I.'s dose was reduced from 50 milligrams to 48 milligrams, no clinical deterioration appears to have resulted. This suggests that no effort has been made to find the minimum effective dose of Haloperidol for I.I.

These residents are at unjustifiable risk of harm due to excessive and long-term exposure to these medications, including tardive dyskinesia.<sup>5</sup>

We also found a significant diagnostic-therapeutic disconnect at Choate and a lack of detailed documentation in records where the resident's diagnosis does not clearly explain the psychotropic regimen in place. This therapeutic-disconnect results in insufficient explanation or justification in individual records for current and future clinical decision-making. Therefore, the potential harm to residents is two-fold: the person may be treated with inappropriate and/or unnecessary medications and, at the same time, will not receive proper treatment for the underlying mental illness. Similarly, our expert reviewed a number of cases where exemptions from scheduled reductions in antipsychotic medications have been requested and granted absent concurrent empirical evidence that the scheduled reduction in medication would be harmful to the resident. This diagnostic-therapeutic disconnect impairs other aspects of the treatment provided at Choate, unnecessarily prolongs individuals' institutionalization at Choate, and accordingly contributes to violations of the Constitution and Olmstead. The following examples illustrate the diagnostic-therapeutic disconnect present at Choate:

- J.J. was prescribed the psychotropic medications Pimozide, Haloperidol, and Clonazepam, the stated goal for which was to reduce or eliminate symptoms of Tourette's syndrome.<sup>6</sup> According to her records, the dosage of all three of these medications has been increasing, but no empirical evidence of the efficacy of these medications at reducing the severity of the Tourette's disorder is included in her records;

<sup>5</sup> Tardive dyskinesia is a muscular side effect of anti-psychotic drugs and is primarily characterized by random movements in the tongue, lips, or jaw as well as facial grimacing, movements of arms, legs, fingers, and toes, or even swaying movements of the trunk or hips.

<sup>6</sup> Tourette's syndrome is a neurological disorder characterized by multiple involuntary movements and vocalizations, or tics, which are frequent, repetitive, and rapid.

- K.K. occasionally displays inappropriate behaviors, including, most notably, physical aggression that involves pulling the hair of staff members. He is currently prescribed Perphenazine, a psychotropic medication. According to our consultant's review of his record, however, there is an absence of any description of psychotic symptoms, and there is a notation that a behavior program developed for K.K. in the 1990s was effective in reducing the frequency of the physical aggression and hair pulling. It is therefore not clear that the Perphenazine is being used to treat a psychotic disorder rather than to suppress aggression, which may be occurring on a behavioral basis. Moreover, there is evidence in the record that K.K. has manifested motor side effects that have required treatment with Benztropine, and that he has also developed dysphagia,<sup>7</sup> potentially related to the Perphenazine;
- L.L. is 44-year-old male who weighed 236 pounds in April 2007, which is 137 percent of his ideal body weight. He is currently on Risperidone, and one of the known side effects of this medication is weight gain. Nevertheless, the section of the record that primarily addresses potential negative side effects focuses primarily on the possible effect on his motor skills. While Risperidone can have some effect on motor skills, the most significant side effects are its metabolic side effects and the potential for weight gain. Especially given L.L.'s obesity, his treatment should at least acknowledge the potential for Risperidone to be exacerbating this problem and consider transitioning him to a more weight-neutral medication. Moreover, the frequency and intensity of his behaviors, as recorded, are not significant enough to bar consideration of a reduction in his Risperidone dosage; and
- M.M. has a long history of violent outbursts, physical aggression, self-injurious behaviors, and inappropriate sexual behaviors. During our review of his records, we found that, although he has been on many different psychotropic medications, it was noted that none of them have been effective at controlling his maladaptive behaviors. We also found no documentation of symptoms related to a psychotic disorder. Nevertheless, M.M. is currently on 600 milligrams of Lithium and 40 milligrams of Haloperidol per day, despite a May 9, 2005, consultation that recommended decreasing the Lithium until discontinued, and a lack of any empirical evidence that the Haloperidol has been helpful, especially at the given dosage, which is higher than usually used.

Furthermore, we could find no documentation in the record that a sustained attempt has been made to determine the lowest effective dose of Haloperidol for M.M.

The continuation of these individuals on psychotropic medications that are not clinically justified by their symptoms, especially in unusually high dosages, or that may be having significant side effects when other medication options have not been attempted, exposes these individuals to unjustifiable risk of harm from the potential side effects inherent in the use of these medications.

During our review, we noted that Choate routinely documents data regarding the frequency of monitored behavioral symptoms. There was no documented evidence, however, that Choate routinely measures the intensity of monitored symptoms. To make appropriate dosage changes and assess the overall efficacy of the psychotropic medication administered, both frequency and intensity must be routinely measured and recorded. In the example of M.M., above, we could only find data on the frequency of his maladaptive behaviors, and none on their intensity.

Finally, as discussed in the previous section, Choate fails to ensure the adequate documentation of interdisciplinary collaborations between psychiatry, psychology, and medicine and here again relies too heavily on informal conversations to relay information necessary for adequate treatment decisions. Choate's psychiatrist and medical doctors indicated during interviews with our consulting expert that extensive discussions between psychiatry and medical occur before psychotropic regimes are implemented or changed. However, the subsequent record review by our expert revealed only infrequent and cursory documentation of these discussions. Furthermore, where discussions and empirical data do exist in the resident's record, this information does not appear to be used to inform the clinical decision-making process on a regular basis.

3. Physical and Nutritional Management Are Not Adequately Individualized

Physical and nutritional management services are a significant aspect of adequate health care services for persons with developmental disabilities. These supports should minimize risks associated with swallowing and digestion dysfunctions that predispose an individual to an increased risk of bowel impaction, choking, and aspiration, including aspiration pneumonia. In this area particularly, vulnerable residents need forward-looking care to prevent problems that can lead to illness, hospitalization, and death.

Choate, to its credit, does ensure that some aspects of physical and nutritional management are adequate. Generally accepted professional standards require that Choate assess residents for risk of dysphagia and implement appropriate dietary and programmatic safeguards based on these assessments to prevent the occurrence of harm from swallowing dysfunction. Choate's risk assessments are generally adequate. Barium swallowing studies are consistently conducted by off-ground community providers when initial assessments suggest this is necessary. Further, there is appropriate consultation between the attending physician and speech pathologist to perform initial swallowing evaluations and identify significant swallowing problems that develop in individual residents.

Nevertheless, there are significant deficiencies in Choate's physical and nutritional management, which pose serious risks to residents. Choate does not ensure that appropriate dietary and programmatic safeguards are implemented to prevent the risk of harm from dysphagia. First, the administration of the correct meal to the correct individual relies too heavily on staff recognition of the individual without a back-up system, such as picture cards, to facilitate resident identification. The current system creates the potential for a resident to receive the food tray of another individual in error. During dining, it is imperative that residents receive the correct dining tray to ensure proper nutritional needs are met and to ensure the health and safety of individuals who require foods of a certain texture or consistency.

Second, because Choate employs family-style dining, which normalizes the dining atmosphere, individuals with dysphagia are at greater risk and need to be closely monitored to prevent them from eating too rapidly or from impulsively taking food from another resident's tray. Although many of Choate's residents are currently functioning at a level that does not put them at risk of choking and aspiration, there is a distinct population of individuals whose physical status renders them vulnerable to dysphagia, choking, and aspiration. Choate's meal cards and monitoring plans, however, are not sufficiently individualized for those residents who have empirically-determined risks for dysphagia, choking, and aspiration to provide guidance to staff members on how they should interact with the individual, including interactions such as prompting the individual regarding pacing of food intake. The failure to provide adequately individualized meal plans, along with failure to provide sufficient identification of individuals with meal plans, departs substantially from generally accepted professional standards and places these individuals at risk of harm, including aspiration pneumonia and death, in violation of these individuals' constitutional rights.

D. Choate's Behavioral, Habilitation, and Communication Services Are Deficient

Choate's residents are entitled to "the minimally adequate training required by the Constitution . . . as may be reasonable in light of [the residents'] liberty interests in safety and freedom from unreasonable restraints." Youngberg, 457 U.S. at 322. The purpose of this training is to enable of the movement of individuals into the most integrated setting appropriate to their needs as required by Olmstead. 527 U.S. at 607. Generally accepted professional standards of care require that appropriate psychological interventions, such as behavior programs and habilitation plans,<sup>8</sup> be used to address significant behavior problems and assist residents to live in more integrated settings. Choate has the benefit of a competent staff of psychologists. However, as of the time of our visit, the facility lacked a chief of psychology and lacked sufficient psychologists to meet the various needs of Choate's residents. Many of the deficiencies addressed below relate to these staffing problems and to the absence of rigorous clinical oversight. In any event, Choate fails in important respects to provide adequate psychology services to meet the needs of its residents.

1. Behavior Programs Are Ineffective

Use of challenging, even harmful ("maladaptive") behaviors frequently can be an issue for persons with developmental disabilities, and are often one of the reasons the individual is placed in an institutional setting. The harm from such behaviors can be severe, even fatal. Examples include punching, slapping, scratching oneself or others, intentionally destroying property, or pica. The causes of these behaviors often reflect the primary characteristic of developmental disability – difficulty learning, in this case, learning effective and healthy ways to meet one's needs and wants.

Indicia that a facility is having difficulty addressing challenging behaviors include high rates of harm to oneself or others, and indicia that a facility lacks adequate behavioral interventions include high rates of restraints and clinically unjustified psychotropic medications. Regrettably, these indicia are present at Choate. The failure to address challenging behaviors adequately inhibits the movement of individuals to a more integrated setting in compliance with Olmstead.

<sup>8</sup> Habilitation includes, but is not limited to, individualized training, education, and skill acquisition programs developed and implemented by interdisciplinary teams to promote the growth, development, and independence of individuals.

As noted in Section II.C.2, supra, Choate substantially departs from generally accepted professional standards concerning the use of psychotropic medication for individuals with intellectual disabilities. There are a number of individuals at Choate who are receiving dosages of psychotropic medication that are above what are usually thought to be effective therapeutic dosages. There also does not appear to be an attempt to determine minimally effective dosages (“MEDs”) for many of these individuals. Furthermore, our review found a pattern of continuing individuals on high dosages of antipsychotic agents, despite the lack of any empirical evidence that the medication has been helpful.

Similarly, Choate substantially departs from generally accepted professional standards regarding restraint use. As described supra at Section II.B.3, we found numerous instances where individuals were held in mechanical restraints for excessive periods of time, and the manner in which many of the restraints were used, as well as the repeated use of restraints on the same individual, indicate that staff members were unable to respond appropriately to the behaviors that the individual was manifesting.

Further, Choate fails to use appropriate behavioral interventions. Generally accepted professional standards of practice provide that behavioral interventions should be: (1) based upon adequate assessments of the causes and “function” (i.e., purpose) of the behavior; (2) be implemented as written; and (3) be monitored and evaluated adequately. Ineffective behavioral interventions increase the likelihood that residents engage in maladaptive behaviors, subjecting them to unnecessarily restrictive interventions and treatments. Choate’s behavioral interventions are often not effective, based on deficiencies that depart from generally accepted professional standards. In particular, they often are not based on adequate assessments, and often are not monitored, evaluated, and revised adequately. The failure to provide adequate behavioral interventions violates these individuals’ constitutional rights and may unnecessarily prolong these individuals’ institutionalization at Choate.

a. Behavioral Assessments Are Inadequate

Without a thorough assessment of the function of an individual’s maladaptive behavior, including clearly identified, appropriate replacement behaviors, behavioral interventions will not be successful in modifying the maladaptive behavior. In this regard, a functional assessment identifies the particular positive or negative factors that prompt or maintain a challenging behavior for a given individual. By understanding the precursors and, separately, the purposes or “functions,” of challenging behaviors, professionals can attempt to reduce or eliminate these factors’ influence, and thus reduce or eliminate the challenging behaviors. Without such informed understanding of the cause of behaviors, attempted treatments are arbitrary and ineffective. Choate's functional assessments are not adequate for this purpose. They do not effectively guide selection of replacement behaviors or intervention procedures, frequently resulting in a weak relationship between assessment results and intervention programs. For example, N.N.'s behavior intervention plan ("BIP") indicates that his "problematic behavior is maintained by him trying to escape<sup>9</sup> staff requests, gaining attention, and access to tangible items." His replacement behaviors are defined as: "Unit Incentive Program," "Empathy Skill," and "Social Skills." On their face, these programs would not teach N.N. how he can escape requests or gain attention or tangibles in more socially acceptable ways. The lack of an adequate behavioral assessment leading to an appropriate behavioral intervention plan to address his maladaptive behaviors inhibits N.N.'s ability to move to a more integrated setting.

Separately, as Choate's policies reflect, it is important to conduct intellectual assessments of individuals at regular intervals. Particularly as persons with developmental disabilities age (especially persons having Down Syndrome) and are exposed to long-term doses of cognition-altering psychotropic medications, their cognitive abilities can change significantly. Such changes affect their habilitation needs, as discussed in Section II.D.2, infra, but they also affect their needs for, and the nature of, the behavioral interventions that they receive. Similarly, these assessments are sometimes a requisite for discharge planning. Yet, in practice, Choate is not conducting such assessments when needed. For instance, at the time of our visit, O.O.'s PSP notes that his last intellectual assessment occurred in March of 2002. As of the time of our visit, he was past due for reassessment, according to the policy of the facility and generally accepted professional standards of care. P.P.'s PSP, dated April 19, 2007, notes that his most recent intellectual assessment was on August 15, 2001, which again departs from Choate's policies and generally accepted professional standards. Similarly, the psychometric (i.e., intellectual aptitude) assessment section of Q.Q.'s BIP (dated April 7, 2005, and revised June 14, 2007) indicates that he was last assessed on May 9, 1996. These examples demonstrate Choate's failure to conduct intellectual assessments as necessary.

Maladaptive behavior is frequently a form of communication for persons with developmental disabilities who lack the tools to communicate more conventionally. Consequently, although a complete functional assessment should address communication, a separate, reliable communication assessment should be routinely used to identify the role of communication in an individual's maladaptive behaviors and, separately, as discussed below regarding habilitation, to identify appropriate learning objectives and interventions that enable the individual to move to a more integrated setting. Relatedly, another common cause of maladaptive behavior is pain. Failure to respond timely to pain obviously leads to avoidable suffering and is recognized as contributing to increases in maladaptive behaviors. Choate's communication assessment inventories reflect an understanding of the linkages between communication and behavior. However, it appears from our review that communication assessments at Choate are performed only infrequently.

Further, where assessments did occur, we found breakdowns in the diagnoses that were subsequently rendered. For instance, the psychometric assessment section of Q.Q.'s BIP (dated April 7, 2005; revised June 14, 2007) indicates that he has a full scale IQ of 58. However, his Axis II diagnoses include "Moderate Mental Retardation," a diagnosis that would require a significantly lower IQ score. Failure to reflect assessment results accurately in Clinical Diagnoses may lead to an inaccurate perception of individuals and inappropriate treatment planning. In this regard, our consultants found a repeated lack of support for psychiatric diagnoses where assessments from psychologists would be warranted. For instance, Q.Q.'s same BIP includes an Axis II diagnosis of personality disorder, NOS (not otherwise specified). The narrative does not offer any justification for this diagnosis, nor does it reference any observable behavioral criteria obviously associated with this psychiatric diagnosis. Interventions premised upon clinically unsupported diagnoses will be effective only by happenstance and easily can be counter-therapeutic, particularly the unwarranted use of psychotropic medication, which is a significant issue at this facility.

b. Behavioral Interventions Are Inappropriate, Insufficient, or Non-Existent

According to generally accepted professional standards, effective behavioral interventions should target the function of the maladaptive behavior to the maximum extent possible and be built on replacing the maladaptive behavior with a healthy alternative behavior that serves the same function. To a lesser extent, behavioral interventions may include modifying the environmental causes of the maladaptive behavior. Although effective behavioral interventions typically include a means of redirecting an individual from a maladaptive behavior, this is distinct from seeking only to control or suppress the maladaptive behavior.

Behavioral interventions at Choate substantially departs from generally accepted professional standards in important respects. As noted above, the facility is relying excessively on psychotropic medications and physical restraints to control behaviors. This is, in part, due to the fact that Choate's behavioral assessments do not lead to effective behavioral interventions, as discussed in the previous section of this letter. Nevertheless, in several instances where assessments, coupled with observations and record review, pointed to an environmental factor (distinct from mental illness) as the function of a behavior, it appeared that Choate did not use this information to identify appropriate replacement behaviors or to attempt to modify the environmental factor. Further, the identified replacement behaviors were often too broadly stated to be useful, as in the above example of N.N.

Moreover, we found multiple examples of individuals who had been identified as having significant maladaptive behaviors but who nevertheless were not receiving structured behavioral interventions to address these behaviors. For instance, our consultant noted that two individuals on the forensic unit (R.R. and S.S.) were noted to be at risk for self-injurious behavior ("SIB") but neither had a behavior intervention plan. Further, a treatment team presented data at E.E.'s transition meeting regarding behaviors of "noncompliance," "property destruction," "physical aggression," and "verbal aggression." Yet, E.E. did not have a behavior intervention plan to address them.

Further, there should be a clinical congruence among targeted behaviors, assessments, and interventions. Yet, we found instances of inconsistency, even as to what an individual's target maladaptive behaviors were. For instance, N.N.'s behavior improvement plan did not identify the same target behaviors as were listed in his individual education plan ("IEP"). Physical aggression, teasing/provoking, and self-injurious behavior are included on his BIP but not on his IEP.

More fundamentally, we found repeated examples of Choate's failure to revisit behavioral interventions in response to compelling evidence that an individual's maladaptive behaviors were not improving, or were even deteriorating. This was true even at mandatory annual reviews that are expressly structured to address such issues. For instance, T.T.'s PSP of February 13, 2007, states that, "[o]verall, [M.] has shown an increase in the frequency or intensity of the target behaviors." In fact, our review found that all of T.T.'s challenging behaviors for which there was data from the previous year showed an approximately four-fold increase during the first part of the year. Yet, the recommendation was to "[c]ontinue current Behavior Intervention Plan." Between December 2006 and March 2007, Choate conducted four "Special Program Reviews" for T.T. due to injuries caused by SIB. The facility added interventions consisting of body checks at shift change, one-to-one supervision of T.T. at night, and use of restraints. However, these interventions are focused exclusively on restricting behavior, not modifying it. Significantly, T.T.'s monthly summary reviews for this period stated that the behavior program "[c]ontinues to meet individual's needs." Our consultant concluded that, apart from continuing a reduction of this individual's psychotropic medication, "there was no indication of a team response to his behavioral status." Additionally, repeated use of restraints at Choate do not lead to meaningful reassessments of behavioral interventions or to warranted revisions in interventions. Our consultant further opined that, “[t]he failure to revise behavioral intervention plans in response to a lack of progress or to significant events is perhaps the most serious indictment of behavioral treatment at Choate.”

As noted previously, the failure to implement timely and appropriate behavioral interventions undermines the other care and treatment provided at Choate, prolongs these individuals’ use of maladaptive behaviors that led to their institutionalization, and impairs their ability to move to more integrated settings.

c. Implementation of Behavioral Treatment Is Not Documented or Observed

Consistent and correct implementation of appropriate behavioral interventions is essential. Choate uses a “Behavior Drill Procedure,” that “requires that the staff person demonstrate/role play rather than discuss how to implement procedures outlined in the Behavior Drill.” However, it appears that Choate frequently fails to meet this standard. As an initial matter, training records did not reveal which staff should have been trained on BIPs using the Behavior Drill, when the training should have been completed, or which staff have yet to be trained on any given program. Moreover, the facility’s practice, as of the time of our review, does not include observation of staff implementing any aspect of the behavior plan. This is a significant deficiency; without relative certainty that plans are being implemented as designed, it is impossible to determine whether a behavioral plan is effective.

d. Monitoring and Evaluation of Behavioral Programs Is Inadequate

Generally accepted professional standards of care require that facilities monitor residents who have behavior programs to assess the residents’ progress and the program’s efficacy. Without the necessary monitoring and evaluation, residents are in danger of being subjected to inadequate and unnecessarily restrictive treatment, to avoidable injuries related to untreated behaviors, and to unnecessarily prolonged institutionalization, all in violation of the Constitution and Olmstead.

As a threshold matter, Choate does not assess, for clinical purposes, critical aspects of psychological services at the facility, such as the use of restraints, the use of emergency procedures, the development and update of functional assessments, and staff implementation of programs. There is no systemic tracking and analysis of the type of restrictive components contained in BIPs. In fact, as noted previously, we found several instances of restraint use that were not recorded in Choate’s restraint database. Thus, Choate's current reliance on restraint data for clinical purposes would likely lead to flawed assessments of treatment efficacy on both an individual and a systemic basis.

Further, as noted in Section II.C.2, supra, Choate relies heavily on psychotropic medications as a primary form of behavioral intervention, although it is seeking to reduce the use of psychotropics. As for traditional behavioral interventions, although Choate gathers some data to assess the interventions' efficacy, the facility lacks a standard, clinically justified method to gather data and confirm its accuracy. Additionally, the presence or absence of replacement behaviors, which mitigate or prevent the maladaptive behavior's occurrence, is rarely tracked. In short, Choate lacks a means to ensure that appropriate data are accurately and consistently reported.

Moreover, the BIPs we reviewed failed to provide adequate strategies for measuring the effectiveness of the plan. The outcomes currently emphasized by Choate to measure effectiveness focus on reducing the frequency of problem behaviors but fail to address improving skills or increasing independence adequately so that individuals can be moved to more integrated settings. Although the BIPs all mention collecting data regarding the occurrence of problem behaviors, plans fail to describe clearly, or in some cases to mention, the methods used to promote positive replacement behaviors. Teams routinely fail to monitor data regarding the individual's use of such behaviors.

e. Quality Assurance and Oversight of Behavioral Support Services Are Insufficient

Further, the safeguard of professional review and monitoring of behavior support services, as of our tour, is not taking place at Choate. These responsibilities largely fall on an adequate peer review process (an assessment of a practitioner's work by other professionals in the field to foster compliance with the generally accepted professional standards of the discipline) and a functioning behavior intervention committee ("BIC"). Neither of these important safeguards are functioning at Choate. In particular, we found that the BIC is not appropriately evaluating the content and quality of the behavior programs, or whether they meet professional standards. The BIC's failure to provide critical and substantive review of behavior intervention plans permits behavior programs to continue when these programs are ineffective, inefficient, and inconsistent. The BIC nearly universally approved every plan submitted to it during the time of our review. In particular, after reviewing approximately 120 pages of the BIC's minutes, our consultant did not find any instance where the BIC rejected a BIP, and only found a single instance where the BIC approved a BIP "pending incorporation of required change," although the required change was not identified in the BIC's minutes. We learned during our visit that the State's chief psychologist for developmental disability services was being dispatched to Choate on an interim basis, in part to address the lack of oversight in Choate's behavioral support services.

Separately, although the behavior intervention process includes an assessment of the individual's rights, our review indicated that restrictive behavioral interventions were being implemented without prior approval from either of Choate's BIC or its Human Rights Committee ("HRC"). We found repeated examples of restrictive interventions that apparently were not subject to such oversight. For instance, O.O. received a "special program review" on January 5, 2006, at which the treatment team recommended property searches on return from off-grounds activities. Such searches were not included in O.O.'s BIP. Our consultant determined from record review that "there is no indication that they were approved by the BIC or HRC." In fact, our record review did not uncover instances where the HRC provided any substantive review or discussion of restrictive behavioral interventions prior to approving them.

2. Habilitation Programs Do Not Meet Generally Accepted Professional Standards

Persons with developmental disabilities are to receive adequate habilitation training and related vocational and day program services and supports so that they may acquire new skills, grow and develop, and enhance their independence so they can move to more integrated settings. Federal regulations require that:

Each client must receive a continuous active treatment program, which includes aggressive, consistent implementation of a program of specialized and generic training, treatment, health services and related services . . . that is directed toward – [t]he acquisition of the behaviors necessary for the client to function with as much self determination and independence as possible; and . . . [t]he prevention or deceleration of regression or loss of current optimal functional status.

42 C.F.R. § 483.440(a). Choate's habilitation programs do not meet these requirements and are inconsistent with generally accepted professional standards. The failure to provide adequate habilitation programs violates the mandates set forth in Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 607.

As an initial matter, and as noted above, Choate does not conduct cognitive assessments of its residents on a regular basis. Moreover, Choate does not have a coherent method for selecting habilitation learning objectives based on appropriate assessments, and functional and relevant objectives are not being targeted. Our consultant noted that a great number of the training activities at Choate appear to be nonfunctional, occupying individuals' time but not addressing critical, functional objectives. Specifically, the training objectives at Choate do not appear to address whether the objective facilitates a smoother and more immediate transition to community placement, supports the individual's independent functioning, or improves the individual's quality of life. Similarly, we found PSPs that contained inappropriate goals or objectives when considered in conjunction with other information contained in the PSP. In particular, we found learning objectives that are inappropriate or irrelevant, such as U.U.'s learning objective of identifying his medications, when elsewhere in his PSP it states that he is not currently on any medications. In other PSPs, we found goals and objectives that contradicted the individual's stated or expressed preferences and personal goals. For example, V.V.'s PSP reveals that, from December 2006 to March 2007, a four-month period, he was in a shaving skills program, but V.V. refused to participate because he wanted to keep his facial hair. There is no indication in the PSP that the team questioned the appropriateness of his placement in the program or considered dropping the shaving skills objective. V.V.'s PSP also notes that he continually refuses to work in his vocational program and has, at times, displayed significant disruptive behaviors and "maladaptive behaviors towards peers." The PSP nevertheless concludes that he is appropriately placed in the program without any apparent consideration of alternatives.

Furthermore, individuals at Choate spend little time in habilitation activities. According to the daily activity charts for the first 24 days of July 2007, a review of 49 individuals revealed the following:

- 23 individuals had 10 to 18 days with no activities;
- 23 individuals had 1 day to 9 days with no activities; and
- Only 3 individuals appeared to be involved in activities each of the 24 days.

Training of such infrequency for persons with learning disabilities is not consistent with the requirement of continuous active treatment so that individuals can increase their independence. Moreover, of the habilitation activities provided to these individuals, a large percentage are described as "Music," "Movie," or "News/Weather." These activities are largely passive, and it is unclear how these activities are designed to meet the habilitation needs of the participating individuals. For example, data sheets revealed U.U.'s learning objectives for four weeks yielded a single data sheet indicating that he had "correctly achieved the task" (sorting colored paper from white paper), a total of nine times in the month of June. This suggests that U.U. spends very little time involved in tasks associated with learning objectives that increase his independence. W.W.'s PSP includes an objective to "describe what activities are occurring in a picture," but it is unclear how this objective aids W.W. in acquiring skills that support independent functioning and facilitate transition to community placement. The failure to provide meaningful habilitation activities on a consistent basis is a substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards. Moreover, Choate's failure to provide adequate active instruction and treatment denies individuals the opportunity to increase their independence and makes community placement difficult.

In addition, the interdisciplinary team does not address whether the amount of training and vocational activity for individuals constitutes adequate active treatment to support an expeditious move to a less restrictive environment, increase independence, and improve quality of life. Nor are there written protocols describing the methodology by which the interdisciplinary team should evaluate and monitor individuals' progress on training objectives. Such analysis is not included in the development and annual review of the PSP. For example, T.T.'s monthly review summaries from October 2006 through May 2007 indicate that no progress was made on any skill over the entire eight month period, but there did not appear to be any effort to alter the programs or address the lack of progress in any fashion. Failure to substantively review development and monitor progress deprives individuals of effective treatment and prevents them from achieving personal goals.

As discussed in Section II.A.1, supra, a serious deficiency in the PSPs is the absence of a discharge plan. While Choate identifies barriers to community placement, it does not clearly specify actions the facility should take to overcome those barriers. Generally accepted standards of practice suggest the focus of treatment in a facility should address the barriers that prevent individuals from living successfully in community settings. An important part of habilitation is learning and using skills in the environment in which those skills are useful. This is one of the most powerful motivators for skill acquisition, and this often will be in a community setting. In fact, generally accepted professional standards of care are increasingly emphasizing use of community settings for skills acquisition. Choate's lack of active instruction, treatment and training in a community setting, coupled with the absence of a discharge plan, greatly hinders success in this area and violates federal law.

3. Communication Services Are Not Adequate

If communication skills deteriorate or are not developed, individuals are more likely to be unable to convey basic needs and concerns, are more likely to engage in maladaptive behavior as a form of communication, and are more likely to be at risk of bodily injury, unnecessary psychotropic medications, and psychological harm from having no means to express needs and wants. Lack of communication skills will also make it more difficult for staff to recognize and diagnose health issues, such as pain, and hinders an individual's ability to move into more integrated settings as required by Olmstead. Choate fails to provide its residents with adequate and appropriate communication services and currently lacks the resources to address this deficiency.

More specifically, Choate provides limited speech and language programming to residents. At the time of our visit, we noted a single speech and language pathologist available for the facility, who is also responsible for speech and language services for individuals in the mental health facility. Without an adequate number of full time speech and language pathologists on staff, Choate will continue to provide poor communication services for individuals with developmental disabilities.

In addition, Choate's interdisciplinary collaboration with respect to communication and behavior intervention is relatively weak. Our review suggests that Choate is aware that challenging behaviors can serve as a means of communication. This awareness could provide the basis for interdisciplinary collaboration between speech and language services and behavior support services, but we did not find any evidence that this collaboration was occurring. For example, P.P.'s BIP includes a replacement behavior for inappropriate behaviors that involves prompting him to ask for a break and for preferred items, but his language program instead focuses on receptive identification of common objects. The relationship between the objectives in his behavior program and his language program is unclear, and there is no evidence of collaboration between the two disciplines in producing these plans.

Similarly, we also noted the facility serves individuals with hearing impairments, who are dependent on sign language as their primary form of communication. However, staff on their units were not proficient in sign language or able to communicate effectively with hearing-impaired individuals. Choate's failure to provide consistent access to staff with signing expertise denies these individuals their voice, limits their ability and opportunity to express preferences and choices, and deprives them of an opportunity to participate in their treatment.

E. Choate's Special Education Services For Qualified Students Are Insufficient

Choate fails to provide sufficient education services to individuals as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. § 1401 et seq., Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. § 794, and the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. § 12101, et seq. Students eligible for services under the IDEA are required to have an Individualized Education Plan (“IEP”), developed by the responsible education agency, and the IEP must be implemented. 20 U.S.C. § 1414(d). The failure to provide adequate education services also impairs individuals’ ability to move to more integrated settings as required by Olmstead. 527 U.S. at 607.

During our review, we found that certain individuals at Choate, who qualified for special education services and had an IEP in place, were not receiving the services required by the IEP. For example, N.N.’s IEP indicates that Extended School Year services are needed. However, the “Program Schedule” for forensic residents updated on July 19, 2007 indicated that N.N. was not receiving any special education summer services. The failure to ensure that the services required by an individual’s IEP are being implemented violates federal law and departs from generally accepted professional standards.

F. Supports, Services, and Planning Are Not Integrated

Many of Choate’s difficulties in providing adequate supports and services to its residents stem from the facility’s failure to ensure that information is communicated to, and considered by, the disciplines for whom that information is relevant. Persons with developmental disabilities residing in state institutions have a constitutional right to adequate treatment, training, and medical care, Youngberg, 457 U.S. at 315, 319, 322, that is designed to enable an individual to live in the most integrated setting consistent with their needs, Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 607, and a critical aspect of any care and treatment is the integration of information to obtain a holistic understanding of the individual. Without a comprehensive understanding of the person, the services provided to that person are necessarily deficient. Choate does not effectively synthesize information about the individuals it serves in its Personal Service Plans, and the interdisciplinary team process at Choate is inadequate.

1. Personal Service Plans Do Not Meet Generally Accepted Professional Standards

At Choate, the development of a Personal Service Plan (“PSP”) is intended to integrate information about an individual across disciplines. Our review of the PSPs, however, revealed that integration of information is not taking place. The PSPs are not a comprehensive summary of and plan for an individual’s treatment at Choate. The “Summary of Last Year and Current Status” included in the PSPs, while extensive, simply collects reports from individual disciplines, but does not integrate the information from those reports. Moreover, the reports themselves do not reflect collaboration between the disciplines. One example is the PSP of T.T., which reports in one section that his challenging behaviors have grown substantially worse over the past year. Nevertheless, the PSP does not include any changes to the Behavior Intervention Plan to address the increasing behaviors, and it also calls for a further reduction of his psychotropic medication without addressing the increasing behaviors. We found another individual with a Behavior Intervention Plan that was not referenced anywhere in his PSP, and thus was not taken into account by other disciplines. Other examples of lack of integration include individuals who are taking psychotropic medications but do not have behavioral intervention programs, and individuals who have personal goals listed in their PSP but have no learning objectives associated with these goals. The failure to integrate information from various disciplines in the PSP undermines the treatment that Choate is attempting to provide and inhibits the ability of Choate's residents to move to more integrated settings.

Our review discovered other omissions from PSPs that substantially depart from generally accepted professional standards. First, we found that, on the whole, PSPs at Choate do not reflect individualized planning. They do not describe the individual's goals, and they contain little information about an individual's personal preferences. Without this information, the PSPs necessarily fail to plan treatment that takes into account the individual's strengths and preferences, as required by generally accepted professional standards. Second, we found that the "Strengths and Needs" section of the PSP lacks a social skills section. This is a troubling omission, as one of the primary reasons individuals reside at Choate is their inability to relate to others in a socially appropriate manner. Third, PSPs lack any section devoted to discharge planning. Generally accepted professional standards dictate that a major focus of an individual's treatment at Choate should be addressing the barriers that prevent the individual from living in the community. The failure to require the inclusion of this information in the PSP is a significant omission.

Finally, PSPs are intended to document an individual's plan of care in language that is understandable to the individual served or their guardian. Indeed, the PSPs at Choate include a specific section entitled "Parents/Guardians Comments" that requires an affirmation by the parent or guardian that he or she "understands and approves the Personal Service Plan." Despite this affirmation in the PSPs at Choate, we found that the PSPs often contained highly technical language and professional jargon that is unlikely to be understood by the individuals or their guardians. Without informed input from individuals and/or their guardians, PSPs will not be what they are intended to be—person-centered.

2. Treatment Teams Are Not Integrated

Choate's treatment teams are not integrated across disciplines, resulting in care that does not meet the individuals' needs. This is a substantial departure from generally accepted professional standards.

During our visits, we attended numerous monthly review meetings held by treatment teams for individuals at Choate, and they were uniformly characterized by a lack of collaboration across disciplines. Moreover, the summaries of those meetings consistently fail to document an interdisciplinary approach to the challenges an individual presents, as well as any substantive team discussion about those challenges. For example, O.O. had a target behavior added to his behavior intervention plan on January 18, 2007, but the summary of the monthly review meeting for January 2007 does not include any discussion of the behavior or provide any rationale for adding it as a target behavior. V.V.'s monthly review summaries for August through November 2006, a four-month period, contained no evidence that any discussion was taking place by the team regarding his Money Skills and Vocational Skills programs. In each of the four summaries, the only included language regarding his progress in these programs was: "He is currently working on a money objective. He will continue to work on this objective." and he "is working on a vocational program. He will continue to work on this program." A more egregious example is that of T.T., who had multiple injuries due to self-injurious behaviors from December 2006 through March 2007. The injuries triggered four Special Program reviews, but the summaries of the monthly review meetings for January, February, and March 2007 all indicate that the behavior program "continues to meet individual's needs." The failure to exchange information adequately and integrate that information into meaningful treatment is a substantial, and very significant, departure from generally accepted professional standards. Furthermore, without accurate and complete documentation of the interdisciplinary team process, it is impossible to evaluate treatment teams' actions and build upon successful interventions.

We also found the monthly review meetings and summaries had several significant omissions. One troubling omission was the lack of action plans that were developed through the monthly review process. None of the monthly review meetings that we attended while at Choate produced any action plans to address an individual's needs, and the monthly review summaries that we reviewed routinely failed to include any action plans. A second omission that we observed was the failure to review and discuss restraint data during monthly reviews meetings. We found several examples where a restraint occurred during the time period for the monthly review, but the monthly review summary did not make any reference to the restraint, nor was there any documentation of whether the team had considered whether changes to the active treatment plan were necessary to prevent the need for further restraints. A third omission in the monthly review process was a routine failure to address discharge planning and barriers to placement. The monthly review meetings we attended did not include any substantive discussion of discharge planning or barriers to placement in the community, and the monthly review summaries we reviewed similarly failed to address these issues. These omissions diminish Choate's ability to provide adequate treatment to its residents.

Choate also fails to include critical individuals in the interdisciplinary team process. We found that direct care staff are not included in team meetings, undermining the team process. Direct care staff provide information based on direct observations of the individual that is critical to effective treatment planning. The failure to involve direct care staff in treatment decisions also undercuts Choate's ability to ensure that consensus is reached on appropriate treatment and that treatment is uniformly implemented. Additionally, we found that the individuals themselves are not consistently present at monthly review meetings. At least four individuals - X.X., G.G., Y.Y., and Z.Z. - did not attend their monthly review meetings during our visit. We do note, and appreciate, that when individuals were present at meetings, effort was made to engage them actively in their treatment and the individuals were treated with dignity and respect. Nevertheless, generally accepted professional standards dictate that an individual be actively involved in their treatment planning, and effort should be made to ensure that individuals are more consistently involved in this process.

III. MINIMUM REMEDIAL MEASURES

To remedy the identified deficiencies and protect the constitutional and statutory rights of Choate residents, the State should promptly implement, at a minimum, the remedial measures set forth below. Many of these deficiencies could be remedied, in part, by focusing the care and treatment at Choate on moving individuals into the most integrated settings appropriate to their needs:

A. Transition and Discharge Planning

1. Ensure that each individual residing in Choate is served in the most integrated setting appropriate to meet each person's individualized needs. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
  - a. Provide transition, discharge, and community placement services consistent with generally accepted professional standards of care to all individuals residing at Choate;
  - b. Actively pursue the appropriate discharge of individuals residing at Choate and provide them with adequate and appropriate protections, supports, and services, consistent with each person's individualized needs, in the most integrated setting in which they can be reasonably accommodated, and where the individual does not object;

- c. Set forth in reasonable detail a written transition plan specifying the particular protections, supports, and services that each individual will or may need in order to safely and successfully transition to and live in the community;
- d. Develop each transition plan using person-centered planning principles. Each transition plan should specify with particularity the individualized protections, supports, and services needed to meet the needs and preferences of the individual in the alternative community setting, including their scope, frequency, and duration. Each transition plan should include all individually-necessary protections, supports, and services, including but not limited to:
  - i. housing and residential services;
  - ii. transportation;
  - iii. staffing;
  - iv. health care and other professional services;
  - v. specialty health care services;
  - vi. therapy services;
  - vii. psychological, behavioral, and psychiatric services;
  - viii. communication and mobility supports;
  - ix. programming, vocational, and employment supports; and
  - x. assistance with activities of daily living.
- e. Include in each transition plan specific details about which particular community providers, including residential, health care, and program providers, can furnish needed protections, services, and supports;

- f. Emphasize the placement of residents into smaller community homes in its transition planning;
- g. Avoid placing residents into nursing homes or other institutional settings whenever possible in its transition planning;
- h. Identify in each transition plan the date the transition can occur, as well as timeframes for completion of needed steps to effect the transition. Each transition plan should include the name of the person or entity responsible for:
  - i. commencing transition planning;
  - ii. identifying community providers and other protections, supports, and services;
  - iii. connecting the resident with community providers; and
  - iv. assisting in transition activities as necessary.

The responsible person or entity shall be experienced and capable of performing these functions.

- i. Develop each transition plan sufficiently prior to potential discharge so as to enable the careful development and implementation of needed actions to occur before, during, and after the transition. This should include identifying and overcoming, whenever possible, any barriers to transition. Choate should work closely with pertinent community agencies so that the protections, supports, and services that the individual needs are developed and in place at the alternate site prior to the individual's discharge;
- j. Update the transition plans as needed throughout the planning and transition process based on new information and/or developments;
- k. Attempt to locate community alternatives in regions based upon the presence of persons significant to the individual, including parents, siblings, other relatives, or close friends, where such efforts are consistent with the individual's desires;

- l. Provide as many individual on-site and overnight visits to various proposed residential placement sites in the community as are appropriate and needed to ensure that the placement ultimately selected is, and will be, adequate and appropriate to meet the needs of each individual. Choate should modify the transition plans, as needed, based on these community visits;
- m. Establish in each individual transition plan a schedule for monitoring visits to the new residence to assess whether the ongoing needs of the individual are being met. Each plan should specify more regular visits in the days and weeks after any initial placement;
- n. Ensure that each individual residing at Choate be involved in the team evaluation, decision-making, and planning process to the maximum extent practicable, using whatever communication method he or she prefers;
- o. Use person-centered planning principles at every stage of the process. This should facilitate the identification of the individual's specific interests, goals, likes and dislikes, abilities and strengths, as well as deficits and support needs;
- p. Give each individual residing at Choate the opportunity to express a choice regarding placement. Choate should provide individuals with choice counseling to help each individual make an informed choice and provide enhanced counseling to those individuals who have lived at Choate for many years;
- q. If any individual residing at Choate opposes placement, Choate should document the steps taken to ensure that any individual objection is an informed one. Choate should set forth and implement individualized strategies to address concerns and objections to placement;
- r. Educate individuals residing at Choate about the community and various community living options open to them on a routine basis;
- s. Provide each individual with several viable placement alternatives to consider whenever possible. Choate should provide field trips to these viable community sites and facilitate overnight stays at certain of the community residences, where appropriate;

- t. Provide ongoing educational opportunities to family members and/or guardians with regard to placement and programming alternatives and options, when family members and/or guardians have reservations about community placement. These educational opportunities should include information about how the individual may have viable options other than living with the family members and/or guardians once discharged from Choate. Choate should identify and address the concerns of family members and/or guardians with regard to community placement. Choate should encourage family members and/or guardians to participate, whenever possible, in individuals' on-site, community home field trips;
- u. In coordination with the State, develop and implement a system, including service coordination services, to effectively monitor community-based placements and programs to ensure that they are developed in accordance with the individualized transition plans set forth above, and that the individuals placed are provided with the protections, services, and supports they need. These and other monitoring and oversight mechanisms should serve to help protect individuals from abuse, neglect, and mistreatment in their community residential and other programs. The State's oversight shall include regular inspections of community residential and program sites; regular face-to-face meetings with residents and staff; and in-depth reviews of treatment records, incident/injury data, key-indicator performance data, and other provider records;
- v. Serve individuals who are placed in the community with an adequate number of service coordinators to meet individuals' needs. The State's service coordination program should provide for various levels of follow-up and intervention, including more intensive service coordination for those individuals leaving Choate with more complex needs. To encourage frequent individual contact, individuals leaving Choate should be served by service coordinators who carry a caseload of no more than 25 individuals at a time. Service coordinators involved with individuals from Choate with more complex and intensive needs will carry a caseload of no more than 20 individuals at a time.

All service coordinators should receive appropriate and adequate supervision and competency-based training;

- w. Provide prompt and effective support and intervention services post-placement to residents who present adjustment problems related to the transition process such that each individual may stay in his or her community residence when appropriate, or be placed in a different, adequate, and appropriate community setting as soon as possible. These services may include, but not be limited to:
  - i. providing heightened and enhanced service coordination to the individual/home;
  - ii. providing professional consultation, expert assistance, training, or other technical assistance to the individual/home;
  - iii. providing short-term supplemental staffing and/or other assistance at the home as long as the problem exists; and
  - iv. developing and implementing other community residential alternative solutions for the individual.
- x. Regularly review various community providers and programs to identify gaps and weaknesses, as well as areas of highest demand, to provide information for comprehensive planning, administration, resource-targeting, and implementing needed remedies. The State should develop and implement effective strategies to any gaps or weaknesses or issues identified.

B. Protection From Harm

- 1. Provide incident, risk, and quality management services consistent with generally accepted professional standards to all residents at Choate. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
  - a. Ensure that residents are supervised adequately by trained staff and that residents are kept reasonably safe and protected from harm and risk of harm;
  - b. Develop and implement adequate policies and procedures regarding timely and complete incident reporting and the conduct of investigations of serious incidents. Train staff and investigators fully on how to implement these policies and procedures. Centrally track and analyze trends of incidents and injuries so as to develop and implement remedial measures that will prevent future events. Include systemic recommendations in investigation reports and ensure the prompt implementation of remedial measures to prevent future occurrence of incidents and injuries; and

- c. Develop and implement mechanisms to ensure that, when serious incidents such as allegations of abuse, neglect, and/or serious injury occur, Choate staff take immediate and appropriate action to protect the individuals involved, including removing alleged perpetrators from direct contact with individuals pending either the investigation's outcome or at least a well-supported, preliminary assessment that the employee poses no risk to individuals or the integrity of the investigation.
2. Ensure that any device or procedure that restricts, limits, or directs a resident's freedom of movement (including, but not limited to, mechanical restraints, physical or manual restraints, or chemical restraints) be used only in accordance with generally accepted professional standards. To this end, the facility should take the following steps:
    - a. Ensure that restrictive interventions or restraints, including seclusion, are never used as punishment, in lieu of training programs, or for the convenience of staff. Ensure that only the least restrictive restraint techniques necessary are utilized, and that restraint use is minimized;
    - b. Develop and implement a protocol that places appropriate limits on the use of all restraints, especially the use of physical holds and one-point, two-point, three-point, four-point, and five-point restraints, as well as the routine use of chemical restraints; and
    - c. Ensure that ineffective behavior programs that may contribute to the use of restraints are modified or replaced in a timely manner. For those individuals subjected to chronic use of restraint associated with difficult behavior problems, obtain outside expertise to help the facility address the persons' behavior problems in an attempt to reduce both the behaviors and the use of restraint.

C. Health and Psychiatric Care

1. Provide medical care, nursing, and therapy services consistent with generally accepted professional standards to residents who need such services. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
  - a. Provide each resident with proactive, coordinated, and collaborative health care and therapy planning and treatment based on his or her individualized needs;
  - b. Develop and implement an adequate system that ensures timely, accurate, and thorough recording of all medical care provided to each resident including consultation with outside medical providers, emergency room visits, and hospitalizations; and
  - c. Establish an effective physical and nutritional management program for residents who are at risk for aspiration or dysphagia, including but not limited to the development and implementation of assessments, risk assessments, interventions for mealtimes and other activities involving swallowing, and monitoring to ensure that interventions are effective. Ensure that staff with responsibilities for residents at risk for aspiration and dysphagia have successfully completed competency-based training commensurate with their responsibilities.
2. Provide psychiatric services consistent with generally accepted professional standards to residents who need such services. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
  - a. Ensure that each resident with mental illness is provided with a comprehensive psychiatric assessment, a DSM-IV diagnosis, appropriate psychiatric treatment including appropriate medication at the minimum effective dose that fits the diagnosis, and regular and ongoing monitoring of psychiatric treatments to ensure that it is meeting the needs of each person. Ensure that psychiatrist(s) provide new assessments and/or revisions to any aspect of the treatment regimen whenever appropriate. Ensure that quality behavioral and other data is provided to psychiatrists in making their assessments. Ensure that psychiatric services are implemented in close collaboration with facility psychologists and others such, when warranted, to provide coordinated behavioral care; and

- b. Ensure that psychotropic medication is only used in accordance with generally accepted professional standards and that it is not used for punishment, in lieu of a training program, for behavior control, in lieu of a psychiatric or neuropsychiatric diagnosis, or for the convenience of staff. Ensure that no resident receives psychotropic medication without an accompanying behavior program.

D. Behavioral, Habilitation, and Communication Services

1. Provide residents with training, including behavioral and habilitative services, consistent with generally accepted professional standards to residents who need such services. These services should be developed by qualified professionals consistent with accepted professional standards to reduce or eliminate risks to personal safety, to reduce or eliminate unreasonable use of bodily restraints, to prevent regression, and to facilitate the growth, development, and independence of every resident. To this end, the facility should take the following steps:
  - a. Procure adequate psychology staffing and hours to meet the needs of the residents, including adequate leadership and oversight of psychological services;
  - b. Provide residents who have behavior problems with an adequate functional assessment so as to determine the appropriate treatments and interventions for each person. Ensure that this assessment is interdisciplinary and incorporates medical and other unaddressed conditions that may contribute to a resident's behavior;
  - c. Develop and implement comprehensive, individualized behavior programs for the residents who need them. Through competency-based training, train the appropriate staff how to implement the behavior programs and ensure that they are implemented consistently and effectively. Record appropriate behavioral data and notes with regard to the resident's progress on the programs;

- d. Monitor adequately the residents' progress on the programs and revise the programs when necessary to ensure that residents' behavioral needs are being met. Provide ongoing training for staff whenever a revision is required;
  - e. Ensure that all residents receive meaningful habilitation daily. Ensure that there is a comprehensive, interdisciplinary habilitative plan for each resident for the provision of such training, services and supports, formulated by a qualified interdisciplinary team that identifies individuals' strengths, needs, preferences, and interests. Ensure that the plans address the residents' needs, preferences, and interests in an integrated fashion that utilizes the individuals' existing strengths. Ensure that staff are trained in how to implement the written plans and that the plans are implemented properly; and
  - f. Provide an assessment of all residents and develop and implement plans based on these assessments to ensure that residents are receiving vocational and/or day programming services in the most integrated setting appropriate to meet their needs. Ensure that there is sufficient staffing and transportation to enable residents to work off campus or attend off-campus programming or activities when necessary.
2. Provide communication services consistent with generally accepted professional standards to residents who need such services. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
    - a. Procure adequate staffing and hours of speech and language services to meet the needs of residents; and
    - b. Ensure that speech and language services are developed and implemented in collaboration with facility psychologists and other services to provide coordinated care.

E. Special Education Services

1. Provide education and special education services consistent with generally accepted professional standards to residents who need such services. To this end, the facility should develop and implement IEPs consistent with the requirements of the IDEA.

F. Integrated Supports, Services, and Planning

1. Provide supports, services, and planning that are integrated across disciplines, consistent with generally accepted professional standards, to all residents at Choate. To this end, the facility should take these steps:
  - a. Ensure that PSPs integrate information across disciplines and reflect collaboration among disciplines. Ensure that PSPs demonstrate individualized planning, including the individual's needs, strengths, goals, and preferences. Develop and implement PSPs that include a section on transition and discharge planning, including the barriers to community placement and the facility's plan to address those barriers. Ensure that PSPs are understandable to the individual served or their guardian; and
  - b. Ensure that interdisciplinary and treatment team meetings integrate information across disciplines and reflect collaboration between disciplines, and that the integration and collaboration is appropriately documented. Ensure that individuals necessary to obtaining a comprehensive understanding of the resident, including direct care staff and the individual who is the subject of the meeting or their guardian, are included in the interdisciplinary team process. Ensure that action plans are developed and implemented to address the needs and/or issues identified in those meetings, including but not limited to inappropriate behaviors or use of restraint. Ensure that transition and discharge planning, including barriers to placement, are routinely discussed at team meetings.

IV. CONCLUSION

We appreciate the cooperation we received from the Illinois Department of Human Services and the State's Attorney General's Office. We also wish to thank the administration and staff at Choate for their professional conduct, their generally timely responses to our information requests, and the extensive assistance they provided during our tours. Further, we wish especially to thank those individual facility staff members, both new and longstanding, who make daily efforts to provide appropriate care and treatment, and who improve the lives of residents at Choate. Those efforts were noted and appreciated by the Department of Justice and our expert consultants.

The collaborative approach the parties have taken thus far has been productive. We hope to continue working with the State in an amicable and cooperative manner to resolve our outstanding concerns with regard to Choate.

Please note that this findings letter is a public document. It will be posted on the website of the Civil Rights Division. Commission On Government Forecasting & Accountability
Attention: Facility Closure
703 Stratton Building
Springfield, IL 67706

Dear Honorable Commission Members:

I am writing to protest the proposed closure of Warren G. Murray Developmental Center in Centralia, Illinois. I realize that hard decisions must be made due to the undeniable economic crisis in Illinois. Decades of political corruption and fiscal mismanagement, however, cannot be fixed overnight. Murray Center has done more with less for several years due to budget cuts.

I have listened intently to the proposal for community placement of all individuals. I have educated myself with the literature and studies available. I have listened to Director Casey and others explaining the need for a transition. What they seek to achieve is not possible with the current financial situation.

What Director Casey and the Illinois Department of Human Services strive to accomplish is already in place. The place is called Murray Center. Parents and guardians are begging to keep their loved ones where it is safe and where they are able to achieve the best quality of life. At Murray Center, these loved ones have a comprehensive interdisciplinary team who personally know the individual, strive for continuity of care, and seek to maintain the best quality of life, including community placement when appropriate. There is a clinical review process with the medical director, facility director, and multiple disciplines to ensure no stone is left unturned following hospitalizations, spikes in behavior, changes in medical status, and the like. There can be no doubt that the mission statement for the Illinois Department of Human Services is being met at Murray Center. The facility has functioned effectively and methodically to help individuals with a broad spectrum of disabilities. There exist no sound reasons to close this fine center.

As is well-documented, the closure of Murray Center will not fix the state's financial woes. The Office of Inspector General has reported that abuse in community settings has significantly increased since the onset of SODC closures. I have attached a copy of the relevant report for your review. Your proposed closures are a short-term trend attempting to fix an unrelated, long-term problem of fiscal mismanagement. When the new day breaks, Illinois will not be more solvent. We will have destroyed a proven system and replaced it with a system, similar to that of Indiana, where social workers recommend homeless shelters as "proper" placement for the developmentally disabled. I have attached a copy of an article discussing same.

The decision to close Murray Center will hurt the most frail amongst Illinois citizens. This surely does not respect any legislation to-date. When ordinary citizens "tighten their belt" due to economic hardship, the first move is not to abandon their children.

Please listen to the people that elected you to govern. Listen to the people of Illinois and make the right decision.

I respectfully implore you to not close Murray Center.

Respectfully,

State budget cuts have left families with few affordable care options

By KEN KUSMER

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's budget crunch has become so severe that some state workers have suggested leaving severely disabled people at homeless shelters if they can't be cared for at home, parents and advocates said.

They said workers at Indiana's Bureau of Developmental Disabilities Services have told parents that's one option they have when families can no longer care for children at home and haven't received Medicaid waivers that pay for services that support disabled people living independently.

Marcus Barlow, a spokesman for the Family and Social Services Administration, the umbrella agency that includes the bureau, said suggesting homeless shelters is not the agency's policy and workers who did so would be disciplined.

However, Becky Holladay of Battle Ground, Ind., said that's exactly what happened to her when she called to ask about the waiver she's seeking for her 22-year-old son, Cameron Dunn, who has epilepsy, autism and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

Holladay, a school nurse, said she and her husband would go bankrupt trying to pay for services themselves, so Cameron spends most days sitting in his stepfather's truck while he works as a municipal employee.

"It's heart-wrenching as a parent to watch it. We are people and they are people," Holladay said, referring to her son and others with disabilities. "They have lives that are worth something."

There have been no confirmed cases of families dumping severely disabled people at homeless shelters because Indiana wouldn't provide the care needed.

But some families have been on waiting lists for waivers for 10 years. The lists contained more than 20,000 names last month, and one advocacy group predicted they will only grow longer because Gov. Mitch Daniels ordered budget cuts that have eliminated 2,000 waiver slots since July.

Budget cuts also have resulted in the state moving foster children with disabilities to a lower cost program that doesn't provide services for special needs and eliminating a grocery benefit for hundreds of developmentally disabled adults.

Kim Dodson, associate executive director of The Arc of Indiana, said her group has received reports of state workers in several of BDDS's eight regional offices telling families to take disabled adults to homeless shelters. She speculated that the suggestion resulted from frustration among BDDS staff as families become more outspoken about the effects of state cuts.

"It is something we are hearing from all over the state, that families are being told this is an alternative for them," Dodson said. "A homeless shelter would never be able to serve these people."

State lawmakers said they also have received reports from several people who were told they could always abandon their adult children at homeless shelters.

Rep. Suzanne Crouch, R-Evansville, said she found it "deplorable that people are being told to go to a homeless shelter."

Leaders of several agencies serving homeless people across Indiana could not be reached for comment after business hours Wednesday.

Some parents said homeless shelters have also been suggested — or threatened — as an option by private care providers.

Daunna Minnich of Bloomington said Indiana Department of Education funding for residential treatment for her 18-year-old daughter, Sabrina, is due to run out Sunday. She said officials at Damar Services Inc. of Indianapolis told her during a meeting that unless she took Sabrina home with her, the agency would drop the teen off at a homeless shelter.

Cameron Dunn, 22, waits in his stepfather Ron Holladay's truck while Holladay goes to work in battle of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. His mother Becky Holladay says that when she called Indiana's Medicaid waiver to pay for services that support disabled people living independently, a bureau worker is one option families have if they can't be cared for at home.

Jim Dalton, Damar's chief operating officer, said he could not comment directly on any specific case but his nonprofit would never leave a client at a homeless shelter — even though it is caring for some for free after they got too old for school-funded services and haven't yet been granted Medicaid waivers.

"We're talking about youth that absolutely require services, and no one is willing to fund them anymore," Dalton said.

Parents Told to Dump Disabled Children at Homeless Shelters

Posted on November 2, 2010 by Pat Hartman

As if there weren't enough problems and obstacles already for programs that are trying to house the homeless, or at least trying not to let things get any worse, things are still getting worse. Really, it's one of those news stories where you think, "Hey, is this from The Onion?" We're all in favor of parody and satire, and The Onion is a great publication, but when an Onion-like story is slipped in amongst the "real" news, as if we're supposed to believe it, well, that takes a joke a little bit too far.

Except... the Associated Press is not generally known for its sense of humor, and Ken Kusmer is their man in Indianapolis for coverage of social services and diversity issues. Somehow, we don't think he's kidding. This is actual reportage from the great state of Indiana.

"Ind. parents told drop disabled kids at shelters," the story is titled. Kusmer says social workers are telling parents to drop off their disabled children at homeless shelters. This is not a one-shot deal. He mentions several instances.

First, it's important to understand what a Medicaid waiver is, and a four-minute video from an organization called Arc explains it. The program allows Medicaid to fund home-based and community-based services for children and adults with disabilities, in their own homes or neighborhoods.

This is a wonderfully humane alternative to sending people to facilities. Which don't exist anyway. The program was developed so the state could close all state-funded institutions for people with developmental disabilities, and although we're just looking at Indiana here, we're betting the overall situation is pretty much the same throughout America.

Medicaid waivers are concerned with two types of need: primarily medical need, and need motivated by the developmental disabilities, including autism. Ideally, when this program is up and running, and has funding, the services available would include 24-hour residential support, employment services, adult day services, respite care, support to participate in the community, family and caregiver training, behavior supports, transportation, and various modalities of therapy.

So, forget everything you've just learned, because the darn thing is broken anyhow. With very few exceptions, the waiting lists have always been long, sometimes reportedly as long as 10 years, which would take us just about back to when the program was initiated. Now, the waiting lists stretch into infinity.

What happens when aging parents can no longer care for a disabled adult child, because the parents need care themselves? Institutionalization? Not an option. Independent living? If the person could live independently, she or he probably would be doing so already. What happens when both parents work, and even with both parents working, there's no way they can afford to hire help because they just barely make a living wage? What happens when there is only one parent? When there is only one parent and more than one disabled child? When there is only one parent and more than one disabled child, and the parent has to go into the hospital for surgery? What happens is, in most cases, nothing.

Except that a state social worker, overburdened with unfillable requests, burned out from having to say "no" over and over again, might suggest dropping off the disabled family member at a homeless shelter. Of course, giving this kind of advice is not official policy, and a bureaucrat interviewed by the journalist said any employee who made such a suggestion would be disciplined. And nobody has actually done it... yet. Kusmer says,

There have been no confirmed cases of families dumping severely disabled people at homeless shelters because Indiana wouldn't provide the care needed. But some families have been on waiting lists for waivers for 10 years. The lists contained more than 20,000 names last month...

Kusmer also spoke with Kim Dodson of The Arc of Indiana, the group responsible for making the YouTube video mentioned above. She says,

It is something we are hearing from all over the state, that families are being told this is an alternative for them. A homeless shelter would never be able to serve these people.

Truer words were never spoken. "Emergency housing shelters are consistently full," says Richard R. Troxell, whose familiarity with homeless shelters is matched by few people in the entire nation. For instance, assessing the situation at the time when Austin, Texas, decided to ban outdoor living, which is pretty much the only kind of living available to people experiencing homelessness, Troxell wrote,

The number of homeless in Austin was estimated to be several thousand, which far outnumbered the few hundred beds at the Salvation Army, the only shelter in town at that time.

And now there is even more need, everywhere, and fewer resources. Shelters are just hanging on by the thread, trying desperately to help people who possess the ability to make it through the door on their own, and wait in a line. Even when made in jest — and not a very funny jest, at that — the idea that homeless shelters could take on another whole population is the least humorous idea of the decade.

207 State House
Springfield, IL 62706

RE: SAVE WARREN G. MURRAY CENTER!!

Dear Governor Quinn:

I would like to urge you to reconsider the potential closing of the Warren G. Murray Center in Centralia. I understand that the State needs to make cuts in order to attempt to pay down the massive debt that has besieged the State of Illinois. I do not believe it is fiscally responsible to attempt to balance the budget on the backs of the disabled.

In deciding what and where to cut, has your staff given any thought as to where these residents, who are dependent on the staff and facility in order to live their everyday lives would go? Any thought to the hardship that this would place on their families? Many are not able to take care of their loved ones themselves, many would even have the hardship of having to spend money they do not have in attempts to even travel to visit them. If only you could see for yourself what this closure would do to those residents. Ever think what would happen if you had a family member who needed to be in the facility and the government simply came in and closed it? You are planning to displace 276 residents, some of whom have only known this place as their home.

You are taking away a business which has been a source of jobs for many years. If you proceed with this closure, you will leave 600 people without a job taking away $38.1 million payroll in a region currently struggling with record high unemployment.

The facilities are in excellent condition and provide a layout that is conducive to the care that the resident need on a daily basis. The facility is even certified for expansion possibilities of up to 400 residents. I see this as a no-brainer that this facility NEEDS TO STAY OPEN!!

Once again, I urge you to reconsider the closing of the Warren G. Murray Center in Centralia. These residents need this facility and its staff and this region cannot afford anymore unemployed.

The City of Vandalia

Sincerely,

Dear Governor Patrick Quinn,

On behalf of the Greater Salem Chamber of Commerce, I would like to express our concern regarding the proposed closing of the Warren G. Murray Developmental Center and the Centralia Animal Disease Laboratory. Both facilities are in Centralia, our sister city in Marion County.

I am sure you have received a large number of letters reiterating concern for the 275 developmentally, many severely, disabled residents of the Murray Center. This is a very exceptional facility; trained personnel providing constant specialized care to individuals who could not be cared for by their families. Some have lived at the Center for thirty years or more and this special care may have even permitted several to live longer lives.

Another major concern would be the distress that the loss of another 550 jobs will cause to a county that already has an 11.8% unemployment rate according to the latest report of the IDES. You and I both know that number is not factual, but based on available information. Most believe there are another 5% or more that are no longer counted for one reason or another.

Local history would support the higher unemployment estimate. Prior to becoming the Director of the Salem Chamber, I was the Mayor of Salem for 26 years. Those were difficult, frustrating years, especially the last ten or twelve. At one point, in a span of about three years, the two cities lost several major industries, total job losses were about 5,000, and we have never recovered, probably did not even replace 10% of the lost jobs.

As to the Animal Disease Laboratory, the lab provides services to approximately 160 municipalities and an agriculture community that stretches across much of central and all of southern Illinois. If the lab were not available, municipalities and the agriculture community will have to invest more time and expense of having to travel 300 – 400 miles to have water, waste water or livestock tested.

I cannot imagine that after you review all the information presented, you can come to any conclusion other than that these two facilities are of the utmost importance, especially here in southern Illinois. I realize there are going to have to be some difficult decisions made, but when lives are involved, the decision has to be the right one.

By the way, Murray Center actually is a revenue provider to the state by not using all the federal funds allotted.

The Greater Salem Chamber of Commerce and I would appreciate your support by keeping Murray Center and the Animal Disease laboratory open.

Sincerely,

Leonard E. Ferguson,

RESOLUTION 2012-01

“SAVE MURRAY CENTER”

WHEREAS, inasmuch as the Warren G. Murray Developmental Center in Centralia is one of the state facilities designated by Illinois Governor Pat Quinn to be closed in the next year; and, Centralia

WHEREAS, this is the home for 280 people, several having resided at the facility for over 30 years; and,

WHEREAS, these residents are incapable of caring for themselves and require constant care by trained personnel; and,

WHEREAS, Warren G. Murray Developmental Center employs a staff of 550 people who live in our communities and who are an important part of the economy of southern Illinois; and,

WHEREAS, the Warren G. Murray Developmental Center’s operating budget of $42 Million and the overall economic impact would amount to over $80 million annually; and,

WHEREAS, for years Centralia, Salem and Marion County has been among the hardest hit areas in the state, the loss of jobs for over ten years has resulted in annual unemployment rates always in the double digits; and,

WHEREAS, we join with the parents association of Warren G. Murray Developmental Center in a campaign to “Save Murray Center”; and,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Board of Directors of the Greater Salem Chamber of Commerce of Salem, Illinois encourage all churches, businesses, schools and others with marquee signs to place a message of “Save Murray Center” on marquees in the City of Salem from March 30 – April 30, 2012 to affirm community support for keeping Warren G. Murray Developmental Center open and available for citizens with severe disabilities as a residential facility.

RESOLUTION 2012-02
SUPPORT FOR CONTINUED OPERATIONS OF
THE STATE OF ILLINOIS ANIMAL DISEASE LABORATORY

WHEREAS, the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia was among the list of state facilities that Illinois Governor Pat Quinn has targeted for closure in the next year; and

WHEREAS, production of breeding animals requires extensive testing for export as part of the business operations in southern Illinois; and

WHEREAS, closure of the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia would require new expenses to producers in the form of transportation costs to and from Galesburg, Illinois, a distance of more than 300 miles from Salem, and over 400 miles from far southern communities where livestock is produced for export; and

WHEREAS, the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia is vital in keeping costs down so Illinois Farmers and Breeders can be competitive with other states and nations which are our economic competitors in the livestock breeding and export businesses; and

WHEREAS, the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia employs a staff of 15 people who live in our community and are an important part of the economy of southern Illinois; and

WHEREAS, the current economic impact is an annual total of over $1 million with the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia that has an operating budget of nearly $2 Million; and

WHEREAS, projected savings of closure from this facility are far less than increased costs to producers who must now travel to and from Galesburg for testing of the health and quality of breeder stock for export; and

WHEREAS, testing of water and fluid samples for cities and municipalities that have water and sewer operations will be delayed by travel to and from Galesburg and such delays impact public health through extending the time for boil orders and accommodations for return to safe operations following utility line breaks; and

WHEREAS, the efforts to study the need for the continued operation of the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia follow established guidelines and include the Committee for Government Forecast and Accountability's recommendations to the Governor; and

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Board of Directors of the Greater Salem Chamber of Commerce unanimously support the continued operations the State of Illinois Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia, Illinois.

Murray Center

The closing of the Murray Developmental Center will disrupt families and will increase the mortality rate of the people it serves. In addition, the negative financial impact on the state and the region would be far greater than any potential benefits. Therefore, the Village of Patoka and its' residents support the continued funding of this facility.

The Murray Center is the home to 275 people with severe developmental disabilities. It is an institution of last resort because the highly skilled care these residents received cannot be replicated in small group homes. It is precisely because of the failure to thrive in these homes that many of these residents were placed in the Murray Center.

The disruption that will occur when moving the residents of the Murray Center away from their home will tear apart families, since the families of a third of the residents live near the facility. The closure of the center would make it exceedingly difficult for these families to retain a meaningful relationship with their loved ones who will be taken far away. The move will likely contribute to a rise in patient fatalities, especially among residents who have spent the most time in the facility and who need the greatest medical care, as was observed with the closure of the Lincoln Developmental Center in 2002. Unlike the Lincoln Center which was cited for multiple residential abuses, the Murray Center provides a compassionate environment for all of its residents. Therefore, the 550 employees are being punished for financial conditions that are beyond their control.

If the Murray Center closes, the local economy will be devastated by the loss of nearly $40 million in payroll expenditures. However, the state economy will also fall victim to this short-sighted decision. The efficiency in how the Murray Center operates resulted in a net profit of $10 million in Medicare reimbursement last fiscal year. That is $10 million in federal funds that was transferred to the state general fund.

Research on the effects of environmental uncertainty when an external crisis threatens the operations of a residential facility suggests that the increased stress on residents and their caretakers can reduce the quality of care. Therefore, it is critical not just that the Murray Center remain open, but that the right decision be made soon.

'Murray residents are respected and accepted in our community'

For almost 50 years, Centralia has been more than a home to the residents of Murray Center. That's because of a kindred spirit and bond, which has been developed over the past half century between family, friends and patients, which have come together and formed a community much larger than the center's campus.

In reality, Murray residents are respected and accepted in our community in a fashion, which in reality might be difficult to duplicate in many other cities across the state. The residents of the Centralia community have become friends, boosters, and confidants for the residents of Murray. Most families in this rural setting have cheered and encouraged the employees, parents and patients of the center as they've recognized their challenges and appreciate the dedication of the employees and families of the individuals who reside in the facility campus.

Since its conception, Murray has developed a dedicated group of activists and enthusiasts from all walks of life who stand up for Murray residents. The center has accrued any number of volunteers, dedicated workers and family members, who share the common goal of making the lives of the residents of Murray Center the most complete and fulfilling they can be. Families from across the state have in the process searched out and found the facility to offer the most comprehensive care and opportunities for the special needs of their loved ones available anywhere. Many of those guardians along the way have enthusiastically endorsed and ultimately chosen Murray as a second home for their needs.

Today, brings us to a crossroads for the future of our Murray Center residents. Today, the Center's very future is being openly debated by any number of advocates on both sides of the aisle. One side believes it would be in the best interest of the patients to remove them from their home in favor of other arrangements in smaller facilities and the other argues to leave one of the most respected facilities of its type in the state opened for business.

For most of us in the Centralia area the answer is quite simple and needs little debate or discussion. Unfortunately in following the democratic rule, an honorable debate is needed to determine the future of the facility and its patients. With that said, there is a sincere need to extend courtesy and openness for opposing viewpoints in the process. Nothing will or would be gained by openly debating opinions in a process on the floor.

Any type of disorderly conduct would only serve to prolong the planned meetings being held throughout today. In the same token, such a process could even threaten the hearing altogether because of the various safety factors and concerns, which are likely to see strictly enforced safety policies to protect the attendees of the hearing.

One often overlooked, yet conceived misconception of this hearing, is the notion of a political stand, which is believed to have been already conceived by members of the Commission on Government Forecasting and Accounting (COGFA) Committee to close the facility. The fact is members of the committee are merely here on a fact-finding mission. It is their charge to weigh the merits of closing Murray against the values of keeping it open. In fact, the committee could be our biggest ally when it comes to saving the Center.

With that being said they surely deserve our greatest degree of respect and appreciation. Instead of challenging their position we must use our time to present the facts and the merits and the conditions which exist at the Center. It is our duty to portray Murray Center as the shining example for a state-operated mental health facility in the state. It is our job to present Murray Center's competent and caring staff and the success rates we've enjoyed in a facility which clearly has improved the quality of life for the families and residents of the center. It's our job to show this committee that the patients of Murray Center are more than members of the Murray community but are instead residents of a city in which they often enjoy frequent excursions to activities in and around the community's theaters, parks and shopping districts.

In other words, Murray residents are indeed Centralia residents, who are appreciated and welcomed in the larger community they call home. Today, the extension of an olive branch is important. It is indeed our job to tell why our community and all of its residents are the real logical choice when it comes to the well-being of the citizens who reside in the household known as Murray.

Quinn signs death sentence for Murray residents

At the beginning of 2011, Illinois Gov. Pat Quinn signed a measure making this state the 18th in the nation to ban the death penalty. Quinn said of the decision, "We cannot have a death penalty system in our state that kills innocent people. Unfortunately that system was in grave danger of doing exactly that in 20 different instances in Illinois."

Jump ahead a few months and Quinn announces another decision, in which he proposes the closure of 14 state facilities, including the Warren G. Murray and Jacksonville developmental centers. Through this decision, Quinn may have possibly implemented a different form of death penalty, this one targeted at the disabled and truly innocent.

According to Rep. Bill Mitchell, R-Decatur, within one year after Lincoln Developmental Center in his district was closed, almost 30 of the center's former residents had died.

In a 2010 study commissioned by the Illinois Department of Human Services (DHS) to track the movements of residents transferred out of state operated developmental centers (SODCs) between 2001 and 2008, nearly 24 percent of the deaths were in Community Integrated Living Arrangements (CILAs) and nearly 40 percent of the deaths happened in skilled nursing facilities (SNFs).

Of the residents transferred out of SODCs during that time, almost 45 percent went to CILAs, while less than 10 percent were moved into SNFs.

Using those same percentages, if Quinn goes through with the closure of the Murray Center — a decision he alone will make — 27 current residents of the Centralia facility will be dead within one year of being moved.

MONICA SEALS

Following through with his proposal will effectively sentence innocent residents of both Murray and Jacksonville to death. Without crime, without trial and without legislation, Quinn will have in the same year ended one death penalty only to have implemented another.

These individuals are truly innocent in every sense of the word, but Quinn and his senior officials have commented that despite the pleadings of family members — whom like the families of former death row inmate murder victims, the governor has yet to speak with directly — the closures will happen and their loved ones will be moved.

The true reasoning behind closing developmental centers has been somewhat elusive and the documents behind the decision have been hidden, giving us yet another governor unwilling to live under the government transparency for which he campaigned.

First we were told it was strictly a budgetary move, but when the numbers didn't quite add up to the savings being touted, we were told community integration was always the plan.

We were told that it is not in the best interests of the residents to keep them in an institutional setting and that to transition them into a mainstream community setting was always the state goal.

Having worked at the Murray Center I can say the last part is true. The goal has always been to prepare residents to someday move into a community placement IF and WHEN they were able.

It was also understood that while some residents would eventually make that move, many others would never reach that point. Medical obstacles, mental obstacles, and availability of space would always be hindrances for some Murray residences being moved.

We also understood that even with a steady transfer of residents to other facilities, there would always be a steady flow of others coming into the facility either as new residents or as returning residents, because many have had multiple failed attempts at community integration.

In fact, some of the attempts at community integration were so failed the 2010 DHS study showed that following the monitored Lincoln transition placements, almost 4 percent of residents landed in jail due to behavioral problems beyond the management capabilities of their CILA facilities.

Equally shocking is that of the 166 residents transitioned from Shapiro, the DHS study showed 61 were missing or their whereabouts were unknown.

Looking at the state's own statistics, I cannot agree with the governor that closure and transition are in the best interests of all SODC residents.

To live a life safe from harm and death, to be loved, cared for and accounted for are in the best interests of all human beings, including those who happen to call Murray Center "home."

I believe ~~the~~ the Governor and other elected officials should just take a good look at what they're trying to do. There are many other ways to save money for one. quit flying back and forth here at the State House. Check out the people drawing money off for things they shouldn't. I could keep going on all the ways things could save the State of Illinois Money. So Wake up.

WRITTEN COMMENTS:

I was a high school volunteer - 1970-73 (over 200<sup>t</sup> hours <sup>with</sup> my senior year!). I became summer staff & completed a degree in spec ed. Through years of teaching special, pursuing a Masters & counseling, my time at Murray was seminal to my building of a philosophy & pedagogy.

Murray serves a unique place in the state of IL by virtue of its ① location ② cost effectiveness, ③ close to being 5 stars ④ complexity of services offered to highly time & therapy intense client population, and ⑤ community integration,

The stats are clear, too many of our people's independence, quality of life and length of life are compromised when leaving the facility.

Stop! Murray doesn't house residents, it enables longevity + quality of life to a population no one in the State of IL is CAPABLE of serving.

WRITTEN COMMENTS:

The residents of Warren G. Murray Developmental Center consider the place their home. Many are PROFOUNDLY DISABLED and PROFOUNDLY RETARDED. Please remember they did not ask to be born that way.

Prisoners in the State Prisons can go to their libraries and file law suits about the demise of their living conditions. And yet many of our state prisons are similar to nice college campuses. Most of those incarcerated were adults who knew right from wrong and chose to do wrong. They do not deserve fine conditions which they do not work to earn. Maybe if they had to work hard they wouldn't want to be in jail.

Leave Murray Center alone or improve it. Let the prisons deteriorate if something must.
